Kuwaiti poet Nejoud introduces second poetry book

Connecting souls: Philosophical poetry collection inspires reflection

KUWAIT CITY, Nov 16: In a world that too often vibrates on the lower frequencies of fear, grief and confusion, love is what guides mankind to enlightenment. "Love is the realm where doves and dragons surrender." With this evocative line, Nejoud Al-Yagout introduces her second book of poetry: Awake in the Game of

Pretending. Each person creates an impression on the world. Nejoud invites her readers to join her in reflection to consciously make our impression a positive one. Awake in the Game of Pretending, produced by FriesenPress, explores themes of awakening, darkness in the soul, spiritual love, social constructs, expression and the divine. With her modern free-form style, Nejoud's poems beg to be spoken, felt, and sung. Readers seeking solace will find a sympathetic and courageous companion in these pages, as themes range through the loss of a loved one, anxiety, struggles to be true to oneself, identifying levels of love, and existential questions that ignite introspection. Though pain and suffering appear to be a necessary struggle in the quest for self-realization, Awake in the Game of Pretending attests there is more to the journey than that. Through meditation guided by poetry, readers can transcend the gritty cycle of life and death to welcome love into their hearts. Awake in the Game of Pretending is available for order from the Friesen Press bookstore, Amazon, and Barnes & Noble, and from most online book retailers. Readers can also purchase the ebook on Kindle, Nook, iTunes, Kobo and GooglePlay. Nejoud Al-Yagout is a Kuwaiti poet whose travels around the world con-ected her to the larger community of humanity and showed that, beyond beliefs and cultures, everyone is the same. Passionate about books, words, the imagination and explorations of the self, she began writing poetry as a teenager. It is the language of her heart. Her first book, This is an Imprint, was published in 2015.
