DUBLIN, March 27, (AP) - Thousands of soldiers marched through Dublin Sunday through the streets of the city to commemorate the 100th anniversary of Ireland’s Easter Rising against British rule, a rebellion that led to the country’s independence from Britain and the creation of the Irish Republic in 1919.

British forces, among their many losses during the campaign, killed one of the leaders of the Easter Rising, General John Kelleher.

The parade through Dublin featured military ceremonies at key locations, including a ceremony at Kilmainham Jail where 15 of the Easter Rising leaders were executed.
