LONDON, Aug 1 (RTBS): Several news agencies have started using a new route across the Gulf to feed arms to Yemen rebels, sources familiar with the matter have said.

In March, regional and Western sources told Reuters that Iran, the Houthi rebels’ main backer, is stepping up their support for the rebels in Yemen by sending new routes to supply arms into the country on the brink of famine. A cholera epidemic has killed thousands and reduced the country’s healthcare system to a shambles.

The route sometimes involved transferring equipment by the coalition on to smaller vessels at the top of the Gulf, where they face less scrutiny. The specialists take place in waters near Kuwait and in international shipping lanes, the sources said.

“The route sometimes used for transferring naval equipment,” the official added. “The effects of what is especially meant for naval); or to be precise in the past six months, part of material supplied by Iran, not just Iran but also Saudi Arabia.”

Officials said cash and drugs could be shipped to Yemen to fund the rebels’ activities. The official added.

Today marks the second anniversary of a military invasion that severely and harshly sought to efface the identity of the country. During the invasion, the Iraqis adopted a scorched-earth policy, setting fire on plane by smuggling a device to the Parliament Office. The Parliament on Tuesday faced a crucial economic crisis, the Parliament Speaker said he conveyed a letter from His Highness the Amir in a very positive meeting,” attended Tuesday, said he conveyed a letter from His Highness the Amir always emphasizing the way for minor reshuffling among the directors and large scale reshuffling of 80-90 percent will happen in near future. On Wednesday, Aug 2, the Parliament Speaker, Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah, stated, “We will protect Kuwait and its citizens through national responsibility and HH the Amir always emphasizing the legislative and the executive.”

Efforts to intercept military equipment bound for Yemen had limited success, with reports of weapons or ammunition during 2017 so far and only a few reported maritime seizures of equipment by the coalition have involved Iranian ships transferring equipment to the Houthi rebels.

Increase in power consumption due to current high temperatures

Kuwait's Ministry of Social Affairs and Labor (MoSAL) recently held discussions with members of Al-Khairan panel to discuss the increased consumption of electricity and water especially during the daytime.

Meanwhile, Minister of Social Affairs and Labor Al-Kharaz affirmed that reducing the prices of diesel and kerosene is expected to change the fuel prices in the local country. For example, in 2009, 125 Lebanese pounds were reduced to 105 Lebanese pounds.

According to informed sources, the minister was asked to explain the result of the proposal, and asked for further consideration in the context of the monthly savings of the residents of Kuwait.

Kuwaiti government has reduced the prices of diesel and kerosene from 110 fils to 105 fils per liter in August 2017, reports The Daily Star, quoting sources. The United Arab Emirates and Oman have increased the prices of petrol, kerosene and diesel for August, while Saudi Arabia has reduced the prices of diesel but indicted the prices of all other types of fuel for August.

Kuwait marks 27th ‘versary’ of Iraq’s 1990 brutal invasion

Kuwait marked the 27th ‘versary’ of the 1990 Iraqi invasion, which set in motion the world’s first international humanitarian operation to evacuate a foreign population in peril. The operation, called the ‘Kuwaiti Miracle’, was a testament to the humanitarian spirit of the Kuwaiti people, who, in the face of aggression, demonstrated their commitment to the principles of humanity, neutrality, humanity, and respect for the inviolability of persons and property. The operation was led by the Kuwaiti authorities, who worked tirelessly to ensure the safety and well-being of the refugees. The operation was a shining example of the humanitarian spirit that Kuwait has always been known for.

Minister of Health Dr Jamal Al-Harbi on Tuesday affirmed his keenness on providing all needed care for citizens seeking medical care abroad and taking into consideration their proposals and ideas in this respect.

Al-Harbi, in a statement to KUNA ahead of a planned official visit to the United States of America, said he would inspect the Kuwaiti health office in Washington and a number of American hospitals and medical centers.

He said, “The best thing to remember here is the martyrs who sacrificed their blood and soul to defend the independence and sovereignty of our homeland and to protect our precious land during the ordeal of the brutal invasion of Iraq in 1990.”

Dr Al-Harbi went on to say, “The national unity that brought together the sons of the homeland at the time of the brutal Iraqi invasion was admired and appreciated by the international community as well as our brothers and friends from around the world who stood beside us in times of distress.”

He highlighted the sincere efforts exerted by the blood bank during the Iraqi invasion as well as during times of emergency and crises in terms of receiving donors and processing the need for safe blood round the clock as well as providing distinguished services, which represent a major pillar in the medical emergency system of the country.

The minister expressed gratitude to the “family of the blood bank” for their keenness to excel in their field of work and obtain international certificates of quality as well as for being recognized as the first Arab blood bank to receive the international recognition certificate from the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB) since 1989. He added that the bank also received a certificate of excellence in performance from the College of American Pathologists (CAP) in 2001 and was classified since 2014 as a global reference laboratory for blood diseases and immunology in a list that contains only 50 laboratories which are all in the United States of America.

Kuwait begins preparations for Iraq donors’ confab: Al-Jarallah

Iraq’s VP Al-Maliki appreciates Kuwait’s support

KUWAIT CITY, Aug 1, (KUNA): Kuwait said Monday it started contacts with world countries, the World Bank and Iraq to prepare for hosting a donors’ conference to rebuild areas liberated from so-called Islamic State (IS) in Iraq, expected to be held in first quarter of 2018.

“Kuwait has always stood by Iraq via the international coalition (fighting IS) and bilaterally,” Deputy Foreign Minister Khalid Al-Jarallah told reporters during a reception held by the Iraq Embassy to celebrate Liberation of Mosul, northern Iraq.

A date has been set for the donors’ conference, said Al-Jarallah saying that IS had caused destruction in Iraq, and the world has an obligation to help the country despite the difficulty of the situation.

His Highness the Amir Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Jaber Al-Sabah said on July 11 Kuwait was ready to host an international conference to reconstruct liberated areas in Iraq.

His Highness the Amir praised the victory of the Iraqi army and local people, and expressed gratitude.

Al-Maliki expressed gratitude for the His Highness the Amir’s statement.

Meanwhile, Al-Jarallah said that Kuwait and Iraq are working towards mutual cooperation.

He voiced his hope that the conference would achieve stability and economic prosperity, it noted. During the meeting, the bilateral relations and developments in Iraq as well as political contacts were discussed.

Kuwait’s Ambassador to Iraq Salem Al-Zamanan said a statement by Al-Maliki’s office.

Al-Maliki extolled Kuwaitis’ contribution to international lender and humanitarian support for displaced Iraqis, the statement added.

Al-Maliki congratulated Kuwait on the victory and restoration of Mosul from DAESH.

Meanwhile, Al-Jarallah said that the conference would achieve national consensus among the Iraqi segments.

Ambassador of Iraq to Kuwait Abu-Hashemi recently organized a get-together at Indian Plaza Hotel in Sharq, Kuwait, to celebrate the liberation of Mosul.

The event was attended by Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs Ahmed Al-Kaabi, Minister of Finance Dr. Hama Al-Dulaimi, and several invited dignitaries.

Al-Jarallah congratulated Iraq on the victory and restoration of Mosul from IS in recent months.

A Kuwaiti-organized conference was held at the Iraqi embassy in Kuwait to receive condolences for those killed and wounded in the battle to liberate Mosul.

The cleanup of an open-air heroin market that has thrived for decades along a set of train tracks makes a tragic and well-known landmark official cautioning that the effort will be long and difficult as heavy machinery rolled onto the site.

The problems are many, they said of dismantling a place where drug traffickers do business. "It's very unlikely that we're going to see a reduction in availability of drugs. We're likely to see a real increase in availability of drugs," said a federal agent involved in the operation.

"There is some concern about a spike in heroin use as the market is cleared out," said the official. "But we're also aware of the potential for trafficking to shift to other areas."

Chinese immigrant falls
Gao’s tale leads police to ‘banking behemoth’

MACAU (Reuters) - In 2010, a Chinese businessman had to explain to a judge why he was there. He was arrested on suspicion of dodging duties and sales tax on Chinese imports of 200,000 euros.

That set in train a series of probes into China’s transactions with Spain and set up a string of arrests of suspects in Madrid.

Gao had first become a suspect in 2009, when local police began investigating undeclared imports from China.

He was arrested in 2011 and has been in jail since, but now a Spanish court has ordered his release.

“Gao was found guilty of tax evasion,” the court said in a document, written in Spanish.

The decision, within in Madrid, was signed by Judge Daniel Sanchez Casado.

Gao’s lawyer, a local Madrid lawyer, said that the decision was a victory for his client.

The police, declassified that plan to the judge, said they had seized a large amount of documents from Gao’s home. He was also charged with tax evasion and money laundering.

He was released on bail in 2014 and is currently in Spain awaiting further legal proceedings.

Media reports said that Gao had worked for a Chinese company and was arrested for alleged tax evasion.

But Gao was far from satisfied. When Spanish police went to his home, they found a large number of documents from his business. In 2012, he told the judge that he had invested in a Chinese company and was not guilty of tax evasion.

The judge, in a move designed to give fresh impetus to ‘banking behemoth’ Lloyds, and a late 2012 interview with the local Intereconomia, said that the case was a success story. He was a young man when he arrived more than 20 years ago.

Nearby 500 coup suspects face trial

SINCAN, Turkey, Aug 1 — (AP) — Nearly 500 people appeared in court Tuesday in the biggest trial yet of suspects from Turkey's failed coup, facing charges of attempting to oust President Recep Tayyip Erdogan and murder. The number was pared down from 698 defendants

Police spokesman Micky Rosenfeld said in a statement that some 120 suspects were being detained under the state of emergency imposed following the coup. Many of the 486 defendants will remain in custody for some time, Rosenfeld said. The government has said the coup attempt was a plot by Gulen, a US-based cleric who is accused of ordering the attempted coup.

The trial is taking place in Sincan, a populous suburb, in the presence of about 700 people, including relatives of people accused of assisting Oksuz, who is accused of assisting Oksuz.

The trial is the first of several held across Turkey, which was still under way, near the town of Alar, several days in 2014 to draft one, although the vote was put forth over apparent consent to international efforts to put for-ward “Peace-promoting measures that entail joint initiatives between China, Turkey and the Palestinians, the ambassador said. Doubt over ICBM re-entry capability

SEOUL, South Korea, Aug 1 (Agencies): North Korea said on Saturday it had conducted an "unusual" test of an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM), giving the impression that Pyongyang may have successfully developed a "miniature nuclear weapon" that could target the US mainland, two US officials told Reuters.

WhatPyongyang’s claim is a serious development as it comes amid soaring tensions with the US, which has increased military drills near the North Korean border. The US and other major powers have warned of a "grave and growing direct threat to peace on the Korean Peninsula — and other countries’ security as well — from North Korea’s closest ally, but Beijing, is frustrated with American and Japanese pressure on it to exert pressure on North Korea’s ally.

Suga urged Beijing to resume stalled diplomacy and negotiation efforts aimed at defusing the nuclear standoff with the US and also called for Beijing to join the "sensitive talks" that were resumed.

BEIJING, Aug. 1 (Agencies): China will fiercely protect its sovereignty against "any people, organization or individual who try to damage our national interests," Premier Li Keqiang said Monday and agreed on the need for more talks with the North Korean government. He said in a phone call with South Korea’s Prime Minister Lee Nak-yon that China would continue to work with the US and other parties to achieve "denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula within an agreed timeline within the framework of the Six-Party Talks." The statement sent to Reuters responded: "We believe Ardern will bring more charisma to the role and forge a stronger connection with younger voters. (AP)

Earth to warm over 2°C by 2100

Small odds of reaching 2°C goal

PORT REPUBLIC, New Jersey - Aug. 1, 2016: They’re called “ghost forests.” These mysterious expanses of bare, lifeless woodlands are found in parts of North America, with hundreds of thousands of acres of once-healthy forests now reduced to vast swaths of dead trees. The phenomenon is a visible and distressing symptom of climate change. Scientists agree the startling sight of dead trees in once-healthy areas is an easy-to-detect sign of climate change.

It is happening around the world, from the Amazon to Canada and China, with the forest deaths occurring in some cases because of warming and killing trees in what used to be temperate forests. As Earth’s average temperature rises, the process has occurred naturally due to long periods of drought and range of global temperature increases.

“Happening” is sweeping across the northern tier of the U.S., researchers say. But the forest deaths are occurring even as carbon emissions from burning fossil fuels surmount a “tipping point” that a range of climate scientists have estimated to be about 2°C above preindustrial temperatures.

Earth is warming at a rate that could enable greenhouse gases to surpass an earlier threshold of 2°C, according to a new United Nations report. The report warns that the world is on track to warm by 1.5°C or more by the end of the century.

The report, which was released by the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), says that climate change is already affecting every continent and every sector of society, and that the need for urgent action to reduce greenhouse gas emissions remains.

The IPCC report, which is based on the latest scientific evidence, says that the world needs to cut its emissions by 45% by 2030 and reach net zero by 2050 to limit global warming to 1.5°C.

The report also highlights the importance of nature-based solutions, such as reforestation and restoration of degraded lands, which can help mitigate climate change.

The IPCC report concludes that the world is running out of time to take action, and that urgent and transformative changes are needed to limit global warming to 1.5°C.

Progress impossible with cuts

Randy Newman’s new album is a sharp take-down of President Donald Trump, and critics said the singer has captured the rhythm and heart of the last 30 years’ worth of Trump’s tweets and politician proposed social and foreign policies.

"Progress impossible with cuts," one of the album’s eight songs, equates Trump’s policies with those of Alzheimer’s patients suffering with the disease’s latest stage. The track’s lyrics seem to come straight from Trump’s tweets.

"This is a really bad song, said a sharply different political activist, who poured over the lyrics and translated them into a series of tweets.

"It’s just one of those moments when you realize that the world is truly a mirror of our leaders’ actions," he said.

"The inspiration for the snappy and infectiously catchy ‘Dark Matter’ was Trump, who has been criticized for his erratic and unpredictable behavior.

"There are three young people using the last couple of years, he says. "I think they range from maybe the last 20 to 10 years. They may not be the top of the game for far but that of an album we now own. 'Dark Matter' is a typically poppy mix of topical tunes, quirky rap, and new wave, with a central theme of questions about the future of the world."

"The way the industry is now — which Trump in 99 percent requires — they’re the thing that is really great in that place," he said. "And that’s making me think something about it is a very good place.""I mean, you’re not happy that you’re just being a record company that has a song dropped from a record. They don’t have a list. There are zero opportunities to confess."

"Progress impossible with cuts," the song goes on, "might not have seen this growth," McAnally said. "It’s just one of those moments when you realize that the world is truly a mirror of our leaders’ actions."

Serve blueberry pie with cinnamon French toast crust

By Sara Moulton

Fruits are the easiest simple summer dessert — the happy marriage of a blueberry pie and French toast crust. The best way to get there is to sprinkle blueberries on top of a slice of French toast, then bake it until the berries are hot, soft and bubbling with flavor. The crust turns the blueberries into a thick filling, and the fruit is sweetened by the sugar and maple syrup it is mixed with. The pie is a perfect balance of blueberries and cinnamon sugar: the berries are bold, and the sugar adds a touch of sweetness to the crust.

New Delhi, Aug 3 (Agency): A deadly conflict is underway between India’s growing population and wildlife, caused by shrinking forests and grasslands, with fears that one day people might have to leave their homes to make way for elephants, tigers and other endangered species.

According to a report released by the World Wildlife Fund (WWF), the conflict between humans and wildlife is a growing concern in the country, with the number of human-wildlife conflicts increasing every year.

The report, titled “Human-Wildlife Conflicts in India: A Growing Challenge,” highlights the challenges faced by both humans and wildlife in the country’s rapidly urbanizing landscape.

It also mentions that the conflict is not only limited to wildlife-human interactions, but also includes conflicts between different species of wildlife, such as tigers and leopards.

The report calls for urgent action to address the conflict, including the need for better planning and management of wildlife habitats, as well as the need to promote coexistence between humans and wildlife.

The report also highlights the importance of protecting wildlife habitats, such as forests and grasslands, which serve as crucial habitats for many species of wildlife.

It calls for increased investment in wildlife conservation and management, as well as the need for better coordination between different government agencies and stakeholders.

The report also emphasizes the need for public awareness and education, to help people understand the importance of wildlife conservation and the need for coexistence with wildlife.

It also highlights the role of local communities in wildlife conservation, and the need for better involvement of local communities in decision-making processes.

Biking on North Dakota’s MHD trail a treasure

By Camp J. Williams

For mountain bikers, North Dakota’s Maltese Hills dark-trail system is a place where people come from across the state to experience it. The trail system runs through Adjacent to the city of Medora, is a total of 160 km, or nearly 100 miles (1,600 km) in total. Three years ago, the stars aligned for another crack at a shared celestial show. The younger Brick no longer lived at home, and the telescope went unused. “It wasn’t as thrilled as we were,” the younger Brick said. “He was just as excited to see it with everyone else.”

“Everyone who was outside got to see it,” said Bartt Brick, the father. “We weren’t the only ones who were excited.”

The Brick family plans to watch the event with their son, Brick Jr., who is also a cyclist. They will use a telescope to watch the moon, and they enjoyed telling me all about it — and I was just as excited as they were.”

Bikepackers carry the same gear as backpackers with the addition of tools and space to carry your bike. Ideally, the gear (including a multi-tool, chain breaker, spare tubes, tire levers, patch kit, chain, lube and pump) should be distributed equally around the bike. Bikepacking single-track trails demands your attention and balance.

“People have a variety of attachments, the bike needs to feel as riders become one with the trail. The ideal bike should be a hardtail (with or without suspension) mountain bike with 27.5 or 29-inch wheels and bags for the frame, fork, handlebar and seat post.”

“We’ve been so excited, we ran in and told everyone,” Brick said. “We’re proof you don’t need top-of-the-line bikes to enjoy the MHD trail.”

On Aug 21, three generations of Bricks will flock to the town and surrounding Jefferson County for the Aug 21 eclipse, creating various camping opportunities for everyone. “We’re so excited,” Brick said. “It’s going to be a once-in-a-lifetime.”

Visitors with bikes — even walk-in campsites — are not permitted ing or carrying them — are not permitted on the Bully Pulpit golf course, just outside Medora. Western-style musical show, runs all summer

Wife decries cousin return to the family

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: My 20-year-old son has a cousin who moved from California to the East Coast about three years ago. Recently, she has decided to return to California, where her family lives. I have several concerns about her decision, and I don’t know how to express them. She has always been close to my son. She didn’t even want to get married; she felt it would be a loss of closeness with my son. My son, however, wants her to come back home. He says she will move in with his other cousin, and then they can have fun together. My son also says that she will be closer to his family, and he feels that it will be better for her overall. I think my son is right, but I don’t know how to express my feelings. I don’t want to force her to return, but I would like her to consider the impact on my son. What should I do?

LOS ANGELES, Aug 1, (Agencies): As the latest season of HBO’s ‘Veep’ kicked off last night, a New York Times report had revealed that it’s not just the White House communications director who is prone to being “vulgar.”

“Go back and tell them,” began the email that said in large, capital letters, "Or are you just going to stand there and say nothing?”

The number 24984227170 was typed to instruct the White House communications director, who is responsible for issuing orders to all federal agencies and departments.

They could not have been more specific. They could not have been more direct. They could not have been more clear.

They were the words of a White House official who was discussing how to deal with the White House.

Connecticut. The 82-year-old woke up on March 25 with intense jaw pain, the same kind he had during a heart attack two years ago. His wife called 911. An ambulance whisked him to the hospital into the patient's home," where they did an extensive electrocardiogram of the heartbeat and called ahead to the hospital to get the angioplasty room ready, he said. "Calling from the ambulance is one of the few things in medicine where the phrase ‘time is muscle’ comes from," he said.

• Children with periodontal disease face a higher risk of developing any cancer," said the study author, Wactawski-Wende. The study spanned 1999 to 2013, and included more than 60,000 post-menopausal women who filled out questionnaires about their health. "Women age 54 to 86 were 1.6 times more likely in women with peri-odontal disease than women.“

Previous research has shown people with gum disease face a higher risk of cancer at that site," Wactawski-Wende said. "The esophagus is in close proximity to the oral cavity, and so periodontal pathogens may more easily gain access to and infect the esophageal mucosa and promote the development of tumors.

This study is the first to focus on gum disease as a risk factor for cancer in general, she said. "More research is needed to find out exactly how oral pathogens may promote cancer risk at that site," Wactawski-Wende said.

Threat of an imminent bitcoin split avoided

WASHINGTON, Aug 1 (AAP) — A threat to the stability of a key digital currency has been averted, after it emerged that bitcoin proponents had shied away from splitting it into two rival versions.

Bitcoin has been struggling to cope with growing congestion on its network, leading to delays and high transaction fees. Some supporters have proposed splitting the currency into two versions, known as Bitcoin Cash and Bitcoin Core, to resolve the problem.

But the proposal sparked debate among the bitcoin community, with some urging a split while others opposed it, fearing it could lead to a碎片化 of the currency and undermine its value.

The threat of a split has been averted after proponents of the two versions agreed to delay the split until November.

What would a split mean?

A bitcoin split, or hard fork, would involve creating a new version of the currency that is not recognized by existing users of the original version. This could lead to a rift in the bitcoin community and a loss of value for holders of the currency.

But proponents argue that a split is necessary to solve the problems facing the bitcoin network, which is struggling to keep up with the growing demand for transactions.

The split is likely to involve creating two new versions of the bitcoin software, with each version running on its own network of nodes.

How does this affect you?

As a bitcoin user, you may not notice much of a difference if a split occurs. However, if the split leads to a loss of value for holders of the currency, you may see a drop in the price of your bitcoin holdings.

There is no way to predict how the split will affect the value of bitcoin, or whether a split will ultimately be successful in solving the problems facing the currency.

The best thing to do is to stay informed and keep an eye on the developments as they unfold.
EU bank suspects VW fraud

The European Investment Bank said Tuesday it suspected Volkswagen AG is trying to cover up from regulators that its emissions tests were faked, raising questions about the German auto maker's ability to start recovering from a scandal that has battered its stock price.

EIB chief officer Werner Hoyer said at a news conference Tuesday after meeting the chairman of the European Parliament's Committee on Economic and Monetary Affairs that the EIB based its fraud probe by the EIB’s anti-fraud officials on a report by the company's own internal investigation. Theeko Ten Kate, a lawyer, also told a news conference that EIB was misled by VW about the results of its internal investigation, and that there was a so-called “defeat device” in the cars.

Sterling strengthens and UK bond prices fall on data

Brussels, Aug 1 (Reuters) - The euro zone economy suffered a robust expansion in the second quarter, growing at twice as much as Britain for the second consecutive quarter, as a range of producer price inflationary estimates released by Eurostat showed Europe’s currency bloc’s recovery accelerating.

The trading trend confirmed the belt-tightening trend that had been on show in recent months, with euro zone currency bloc’s recovery, while Britain struggles to hold the negative impact of its decision to leave the bloc.

Data for the bloc showed that gross domestic product (GDP) in the euro zone expanded by a seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent in the second quarter, compared to growth of 0.3 percent in the first quarter. In Britain, GDP in the second quarter grew at a pace of 0.5 percent, in the first quarter.

In the March–June period, Britain’s economy grew at a rate of 0.5% from the previous three months, as prices slid from a high 0.9% growth rate in the previous quarter. Britain’s slowdown comes after the shock of the Brexit vote, which was followed by a wave of companies warning about the future.

The Eurozone economic recovery, which the currency bloc has picked up speed, bolstered by the recent surge in oil prices and a stronger dollar, is likely to continue.

In annual terms, the eurozone’s economy grew by 1.9% in the second quarter after a 1.7% advance in the first.

“Overall, the eurozone economy is showing signs of solid recovery. The economy is in a very healthy state and seems to be on track for continued growth throughout the year. The eurozone’s economy is on track for a strong recovery,” an official from the Commission.

The EU economics commissioner, Pierre Moscovici, said in a statement. “The eurozone’s recovery continues to gather pace and the region is well poised for an upward revision of the forecasts.”

The July 5, 2011 photo shows a grizzly bear roaming near Beaver Lake in Yellowstone National Park, Wyo. For the second time in a decade, the US government lifted protections for grizzly bears in the Yellowstone region from the threatened species list. The decision by the US Fish and Wildlife Service to remove federal protections from the approximately 700 bears living across 19,000 square miles in Montana, Idaho and Wyoming took effect on July 31, 2017. The 9th US Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the judge’s ruling in a 2009 challenge, saying it was up to the courts to decide whether the revered and fearsome icon of the West stays off the threatened species list.

Federal wildlife officials will also remove the bears from the threatened species list for the Yellowstone region on Monday, Aug. 7, 2017. The US Fish and Wildlife Service has been working for nearly two decades to lift protections after the Yellowstone population dropped below 500 bears.

The bears were determined for the first time to be a threatened species in 1975 after hunting and trapping had nearly wiped them out. The population then recovered, though it will be up to the courts to decide whether the revered and fearsome icon of the West stays off the threatened species list.

The ruling does not apply to the park, and the Bob Marshall Wilderness, the Gravelly Range east of the park, and the Judith Mountains in Montana. State wildlife officials in those states will remain as the grizzly population grows and their range expands farther away from the park, and they say they will continue to do so.

An additional challenge is expected in the future from Native American tribes who opposed by wildlife advocates and fears the bears’ recovery will suffer the loss of protections as the US government begins to negotiate a handover of federal lands to the states.

Debates over grizzly management plans submitted by the US Fish and Wildlife Service’s conservation strategy to protect the bears as their population grows and their range expands farther away from the park, and fears the bears’ recovery will suffer the loss of protections after the Yellowstone government lifted protections for grizzly bears in the Yellowstone region from the threatened species list.

The 9th US Circuit Court of Appeals upheld the judge’s ruling in a 2009 challenge, saying it was up to the courts to decide whether the revered and fearsome icon of the West stays off the threatened species list.

Federal wildlife officials will also remove the bears from the threatened species list for the Yellowstone region on Monday, Aug. 7, 2017. The US Fish and Wildlife Service has been working for nearly two decades to lift protections after the Yellowstone population dropped below 500 bears.

The bears were determined for the first time to be a threatened species in 1975 after hunting and trapping had nearly wiped them out. The population then recovered, though it will be up to the courts to decide whether the revered and fearsome icon of the West stays off the threatened species list.

The ruling does not apply to the park, and the Bob Marshall Wilderness, the Gravelly Range east of the park, and the Judith Mountains in Montana. State wildlife officials in those states will remain as the grizzly population grows and their range expands farther away from the park, and they say they will continue to do so.

An additional challenge is expected in the future from Native American tribes who opposed by wildlife advocates and fears the bears’ recovery will suffer the loss of protections as the US government begins to negotiate a handover of federal lands to the states.

Kipchoge plots London worlds ‘conquest’ without Rudisha

Nairobi, Aug 1, (Reuters) - Kenya’s athletes were at the London Stadium for the World Championships on Friday, hoping for domination battered by the absence of two-time 800m Olympic champion David Rudisha with a quadriceps injury.

Olympic 800m superstar Rudisha will not defend his title in London. He is set to fly out to London’s Olympic Stadium on the eve of their departure.

As Olympic champion, this is what I have been waiting for. I would wish to be crowned a world champion," Al-Sabahi said.

MELBOURNE, Aug 1, (RTRS): ‘Medal of any colour’ will do, said South Africa’s world champion Wayde van Niekerk, as he prepared for his first World Championships.

BEIJING, July 30, (Reuters): The Olympic Council of Asia announced its support to the Kuwaiti candidate Sabah Al-Sabahi for the presidency of the Asian Olympic Committee (AOC) in a statement issued by the Olympic Committee for the Asian Sports Press Union (OCA) in Jakarta, Indonesia.

The field will be even more competitive with Asian Olympic champion Hadi Zaghoud of Iran, who won Diamond League events in Stockholm and Doha.

Perhaps, like Monaco-based and African Athletics Athlete of the Year Marius Andersen, it was not only the diversity of sports that has swirled around the team, but also the pressure for success due to their success.

Meanwhile, Christian Taylor will be looking to add his name to the list of Britons who have previously won the world triple jump title at London this month, but he knows he will have to be on top of his game to win.

“Let’s set to sail this ship of our 11th competition victory.”

Rudisha’s London 2017 world title was his third successive Olympic 800m gold, as he looked to defend his 2011 title at the London 2017 World Championships. But he failed a fitness test.

“Mr. Al-Sahli has previously demonstrated that this is in place”, IAAF president Sebastian Coe was quoted as saying.

“I have to be fair on myself and reflect on the year I have come from, in terms of injury, hard work, support, hard work, all of that in a short space of time,” Pearson told Australian media on the eve of his London debut. Pearson, who announced on Monday he would attempt to win a second Olympic Games, is on a mission to defend his 2016 Rio Olympic Games 400m hurdles gold.

Rudisha has switched back to the 48-strong Diamond League meetings from the 2013 worlds in Moscow but has been hampered by a horrifying run of injuries due to a hamstrings and a wrist that refuses to heal.

He has been waiting for a ‘WR’ (world record) medal, which he can also develop into a tactically astute runner. He has won world championships and a World Athletics Diamond League meeting there last month as part of his build-up for the London Championships.

The Russian anti-doping agency (RUSADA), whose registration was suspended in 2015, is set to be lifted from the WADA list of non-compliant states after finishing its comeback process in the first phase of the re-accreditation procedure. It will be lifted from the list if it completes the second phase of the process.

The Norwegian also said that he has asked the Russian federation to allow Rudisha to compete as a neutral if he is granted permission.

Rudisha, who posted a 12.48 second run at the Athletics接纳 the IAAF, meeting in London this month, for the first time ever, has been given permission to compete as a neutral after meeting the IAAF’s anti-doping rules.

It’s participation in London was cleared when officials finally found Rudisha’s registration, who was requested by the World Anti-Doping Agency (WADA) to present proof of his eligibility for the London Championships.

Andersen, who stuck with the IAAF’s requirement, said: "We cannot be overconfident, even if we have such a good team," head coach, said.

Hall gets Easy on after reconciling with Seahawks

SEATTLE, Aug. 1, (AP) - For nine years, the San Francisco Hall of Fame wasn't a consideration for Kenan. He wasn't unaware of what an honor it represents for a football player and in fact, he readily admitted, “I didn’t watch an NFL football game in the last nine years.”

But he was thinking about football on a different level. Specifically, Easy laid it out to me that he was, in fact, hearing the reception he had to tackle the day’s meeting. Easy laid it out to me that he was in the Hall of Fame.

He was the 1984 Defensive Player of the Year and a First Team All-Pro. His 63 tackles were the source of his disillusions of the game I had watched in 15 years.”

The idea that Easy’s football career was over and it was time to move on to new things was a bittersweet moment for Kenan. He knew that it was time. It was the end of an era for the Seahawks. It was time to move on.

But Easy wasn’t ready to hang it up. He wanted to continue playing football and he was looking into the possibility of joining the NFL’s no-cut list. Easy was finally reconciled with football.

Kenan is expected to return to football to lead his squad after their return from their first two Test matches. The 36-year-old Conley has denied the accusations of rape.

SHARAPOVA MAKES WINNING RETURN

Polish tennis player Agnieszka Radwanska has won the Madrid Open with a 6-2, 6-1 victory over two-time champion Maria Sharapova.

The Polish third seed came through the rain-interrupted third round and later defeated the Muscovite for the third time this year.

Over the last two years Radwanska has played against Sharapova a total of 14 times, with seven wins against the Russian and seven losses.

France's Jo-Wilfried Tsonga beat Switzerland's Stan Wawrinka to win the ATP Monte Carlo Masters for the first time since 2013.

Tsonga won a deciding set of 6-4, 6-7 (7), 6-2 and 6-1 to win the final after a lengthy match in a grass court.

Radwanska defeated Sharapova in the third round of the French Open in 2014 and the quarterfinals of the Madrid Open last year, and defeated her in the quarterfinals of the Australian Open in 2015.

The Polish star defeated Sharapova again in the quarterfinals of the Indian Wells Masters, and the Russian lost the semifinal of the French Open in 2015.

Radwanska, 29, is the third Polish player to win the Monte Carlo Masters, following Agnieszka Radwanska's victory in 2009 and Agnieszka Radwanska's victory in 2012.

Paul McEnroe was predicted to be the best player to win the title, but the American's victory was a surprise.

McEnroe had never won a Grand Slam title before and had not advanced past the third round in any tournament since 2001.

His victory over Sharapova was his first career win over a top-5 player and came in his 11th match against the Russian.

Radwanska has now won 14 titles, including two Grand Slam titles, and is ranked No. 1 for the first time since 2012.

Organisers’ aims of lifting area’s fortunes boosted bid

Spiralling costs a major risk for Paris Olympics

PARIS, Aug 1, (Agencies): Now that Paris is planning to use the Stade de France as the main venue for the 2024 Games, concerns are growing about spiralling costs. According to the organising committee, the bill for 2024 will be below that of the 2012 Games in London, which rose to 8.77 billion pounds. costs could be offset by potential savings from the Olympic programme. The total bill for 2024 was estimated at 1.45 billion euros and income from ticket sales and sponsorship. The bid was “sheltered” from changes after the organising committee, said the Sorbonne economist. But the biggest headache for host Paris will be the need to ensure transport networks in the greater Paris area are ready for these Games. Historic deal, Paris celebrates 2024 win

PARIS, Aug 1 (AFP): Paris was celebrating victory on Tuesday in its bid to host the 2024 Olympic Games after Los Angeles announced its intention to host the 2028 event instead in return for financial sweeteners.

The French capital insisted it only wanted to host the Games in 2024, on the 100th anniversary of the city’s 1924 Games, prompting Los Angeles to abandon its intention to bid for 2028.

The agreement must still be approved by the IOC on September 13 in the Peruvian capital, Lima, before the winner to be officially named by the IOC.

But despite the fact that Paris is now effectively the only remaining candidate to host the 2024 Olympic Games, the IOC insisted the agreement had been reached with Los Angeles and Paris, and the HCC is $1.8 billion and has the power to a stunning victory over HCC is $1.8 billion and to disburse $1.8 billion that normally would not be disbursed until closer to the Games kickoff.
