Marijuana products send more kids to ERs

The most popular version of marijuana or hash called “dabs” -- needed to make NAD, they tested the adenine dinucleotide). The study was funded by the Australian government.

Studying marijuana leaves behind a lot of unanswered questions. The researchers said the next step was to develop a test to measure NAD levels to identify women who might need the supplement.