MP Thamer ‘seeks’ to amend Assistance Act

KUWAIT CITY, July 18: MP Thamer ‘seeks’ to amend Assistance Act, as he expressed his support for Kuwaiti government’s decision to provide manpower for own螡vies after the martyrs; and receive salary, as well as non-Kuwaitis who are not

On the other side, the European Union (EU) has also been criticized for its stance on the deal. The EU has repeatedly said that it will not withdraw its support from the 2015 deal, which it considers crucial for maintaining international stability.

The United Nations (UN) has also been active in efforts to resolve the conflict. In recent days, the UN has called for a ceasefire and the withdrawal of all foreign forces from the conflict zone.

Meanwhile, the Syrian government has continued to assert its control over the country, and has launched a series of military operations to regain lost territories. The conflict has resulted in the displacement of millions of people and has created a humanitarian crisis.

Continued from Page 1

A parliamentary committee has agreed to lift the ban for flights to and from Israel. The ban was imposed by the EU in 2012 in response to concerns over Iran’s financing of terrorism. The EU has also sought to prevent missiles from reaching the country, which is considered a threat to regional stability.

The EIB currently steers clear of economic projects in Iran, but they have sought to work with EU states to improve trade relations with Iran.

Meanwhile, the Syrian government has continued to assert its control over the country, and has launched a series of military operations to regain lost territories. The conflict has resulted in the displacement of millions of people and has created a humanitarian crisis.

Meanwhile, the Syrian government has continued to assert its control over the country, and has launched a series of military operations to regain lost territories. The conflict has resulted in the displacement of millions of people and has created a humanitarian crisis.

Meanwhile, the Syrian government has continued to assert its control over the country, and has launched a series of military operations to regain lost territories. The conflict has resulted in the displacement of millions of people and has created a humanitarian crisis.