Your Highness the Prime Minister, this is what Kuwaitis want

By Ahmed Al-Jurashi

Your Highness the Prime Minister, this is what Kuwaitis want. They have seen how entire parliamentarians or outside the legislative authority. An authority should not lack scientific facts; and it is unfortunate that they lack the necessary, temporary measures to address the lopsided population in these countries with the feeling of stability and security and not to force them through their fear.

Add to this the method of committee work. This makes it easy of their reaction since it lacks many issues. People have been from the mass support with their objections, whereas the highness is to encourage them to work and read more for their benefits. Many have seen that many Kuwaitis youth are not interested in politics, and it is unfortunate that they lack the highness' authority.

Throughout the years, many councils have been formed to address the liquidated population, whereas many committees have been formed for many reasons. Kuwaitis have worked and studied many issues. They should not lack scientific facts, and it is unfortunate that they lack the necessary, temporary measures to address the lopsided population.

The wolf by Adel Al-Mabrouk came many months ago, and that was elected freely and honestly by all Kuwaitis. Several draft laws are kept in the basic aspects of the government. A tender and depositor rights, the necessary, temporary measures that the government has to pass to serve the citizens.

The official and the activists said they believed Iran-backed militias to be behind the killings, and the killings have been released from prison after he was been released. Kuwait wins category (C) membership in IMO

LONDON, Nov 30, (KUNA): Undersecretary for Communications Khalid Al-Shahib said Friday that Kuwait Port is one of the megaprojects in the country’s national development plan that will have a great impact on international trade activities.

“Six, 24 hours will serve as a major route for water transportation and shipping services,” she said in a statement issued to Kuwait’s 31st General Assembly of the International Maritime Organization (IMO).

The port is designed to link Kuwait's ports to the main players in the Middle East, including shipping routes to Europe and to other countries around the world. It is intended to become a major hub for the transport of goods and services, offering competitive rates and efficient services.

The port is expected to play a vital role in the country’s economic development, providing a boost to the local economy and creating job opportunities for thousands of people. It will also help to strengthen Kuwait's position as a regional trade hub and facilitate the import and export of goods and services.

The Kuwait Port is also expected to attract investment from other countries, which will further boost the local economy and create opportunities for businesses and entrepreneurs. The port will also help to diversify the country's economy and reduce its dependence on oil.
Late George Bush ... A leader enshrined in Kuwait's minds

"We'll never forget him as supporter of justice"

Report by Sherouq Sadeqi
WASHINGTON, Nov 30, (KUNA): Almost a year has passed since the world woke up to the sad news of the passing away of 41st US President and son of late George Bush, George W. Bush, whose success in gathering international support for the 1991 Gulf War was seen as a military and diplomatic "triumph," as he then declared in his address on Nov 30, 2018, Bush was the longest-lived US president, whose public image was seen as a "pragmatic caretaker" president, who was seen as taking over from his father, whom he was billed as a "pragmatic caretaker" president and who had been seen as an "important victim for him." After that, in early 1991, by a vote of 259 to 13, the House passed a resolution authorizing Bush to use force against the Iraqi military, who had invaded Kuwait, which was under US protection. The vote was seen as a key moment in the process of planning and executing the Gulf War, which ended with the defeat of Iraq and the liberation of Kuwait. While Bush was not the first US president to authorize the use of military force, he was the first to do so in a conflict that involved the United States and its allies in a major way. In his address, Bush declared that the United States would not tolerate aggression against its allies and that it would work with its partners to ensure regional security and stability. The speech was widely praised for its clarity and decisiveness, and it helped to galvanize support for the war. The Gulf War was a turning point in US foreign policy, and it helped to establish Bush as a leader who was willing to use military force to defend US interests and values. The war also helped to establish the US as a global superpower, and it set the stage for the wars in Afghanistan and Iraq, which would follow in the years that came. In the years that followed, Bush was seen as a leader who was willing to take big risks, and he was praised for his ability to make tough decisions. He was also criticized for his administration's response to the 9/11 terrorist attacks, and for his policies in Iraq, which led to the war. But in the end, Bush was remembered as a leader who was willing to stand up for what he believed in, and who was willing to take the tough decisions that were needed to protect US interests. In 2004, Bush was re-elected president, and he served two more terms in office. In 2008, he stepped down after the 2008 election, and his presidency was remembered as a time of great change and controversy. In the years that followed, Bush was seen as a proponent of free enterprise and individual liberty, and he was praised for his ability to think outside the box and to make tough decisions. But he was also criticized for his administration's response to the 9/11 terrorist attacks, and for his policies in Iraq, which led to the war. ‘Quiet confidence’

Biden to Iowa seeks support

DEMS MUSTER, Iowa, Nov 30 (AP) - The Biden campaign placed a fullpage ad in Iowa newspapers that was an effort to dampen talk of an organized effort to undermine his presidential ambitions.

Biden’s aides acknowledged that he’s been the subject of much criticism, but they also noted that he has a strong base of support in states like Iowa and is well-regarded by many voters who support Joe Biden.

In Iowa, the former vice president and current Democratic presidential candidate is seeking to turn around his campaign, which has struggled in recent months. Biden’s campaign has faced challenges in appealing to the diverse range of support both demographic and geographically, especially in rural and small-town Iowa and in densely populated areas.

Biden has a strong ground game in Iowa, with a team of staff members who are working to get out the vote and register new voters. The campaign is also leveraging its extensive network of volunteers and supporters to reach potential voters.

Media

The media seems to have picked up on the momentum the Biden campaign is gaining. The campaign has been making significant gains in Iowa, with recent polling showing that Biden is leading in the state.

Voters who supported a nonviable candidate in the 2020 voting, such as Pete Buttigieg, are now considering supporting Biden. Buttigieg has endorsed Biden, which has put a spotlight on the former mayor’s campaign.

Son begs parents to bless his engagement with guf

By Abygail Van Buren

Dear Abby, My 40-year-old son has set his heart on his 18-year-old fiancée. She is beautiful, sweet and loving. But I have an objection. It’s a big gap in age. I feel she is a little too young. I want to talk with him, but he won’t listen. What should I do? Please don’t tell me to go on next week because I can’t.

— Seeing Clearly In New York

Dear Seeing: When you plant your own green for including, because it is your own child, you will need to understand that it is no longer just a child. By the time you have a child, you may not be able to control or influence them as you did when they were younger. You can offer advice and guidance, but ultimately you have no control over their decisions. Try to have a conversation with your son about his relationship and express your concerns. If he is still resistant, it’s important to respect his autonomy and give him space to make his own decisions. Don’t worry, he will come around.

Cancer patients, survivors at high heart disease risk

NEW YORK, Nov 26, 2019

Many cancer patients and survivors die from heart disease rather than from their tumors, especially if they have certain multiply myeloma, blood and prostate cancer, a study finds.

The study, which analyzed data from the National Cancer Institute’s Surveillance, Epidemiology, and End Results (SEER) Program database, found that 3.2 million cancer deaths between 1973 and 2012. During the study period, 55% of these deaths were due to cancer; another 1% were from causes related to cancer, and 44% were due to heart disease, according to the study, which was published in JAMA Cardiology.

"These findings show that a large proportion of cancer patients and survivors will die of cardiovascular disease, including heart diseases, cancer-related causes, and problems related to blood vessels," study lead author John Rothenberg of Pennsylvania State University told HealthDay.

The analysis found that among survivors with any type of cancer diagnosed before the age of 55 years, 35% of these patients died from cardiovascular disease within the first year that cancer was diagnosed before the age of 55 years, and another 20% died from cardiovascular disease within 10 years from diagnosis. A higher risk of dying from cardiovascular disease within the first year and within 10 years from diagnosis was seen in patients with colorectal, lung, breast, and prostate cancer.

"Our findings suggest that heart disease risk for cancer patients is not limited to the first few years of diagnosis and that attention needs to be paid to long-term cancer survivors," Rothenberg said.

Researchers also looked at data on cardiovascular disease deaths among cancer survivors, such as whether they had other heart risk factors, such as obesity, smoking, or heavy drinking.

"We also found that among survivors with any type of cancer diagnosis before the age of 55 years, 35% of these patients died from cardiovascular disease within the first year that cancer was diagnosed before the age of 55 years, and another 20% died from cardiovascular disease within 10 years from diagnosis. BUSINESS

The Daily Mail owner is offering to buy the i newspaper as thearating to add a new regional title to its stable of national dailies.

The company made the move after its owner, Daily Mail and General Trust, said it would consider divestments "to manage risk".

The sale of the London-based daily newspaper, which has a circulation of around 245,000, is part of a strategic review of the group's assets.

The i, which was launched in 1994 and acquired by Daily Mail in 2012, is known for its political and cultural coverage, with a focus on opinion and analysis.

The newspaper has a strong online presence, with a daily website traffic of around 4 million unique visitors, according to the company.

Daily Mail owner DMGT, which also owns the Daily Mail, The Mail on Sunday and The Mail on Sunday, has been reviewing its portfolio of assets in recent months, with a view to selling some of its non-core businesses.

DMGT has already announced plans to sell its stake in The Mail on Sunday, as well as its share in The Guardian and Observer, to help fund the £300 million acquisition of the Australian magazine company Bauer Media Group.

The company said it would consider the sale of other assets as part of its strategic review, which is expected to be completed by the end of the year.

The announcement came as DMGT reported a pre-tax profit of £255 million for the year to March 31, up from £237 million the previous year.

Chief executive Paul Dacre said the company was "confident" in its ability to deliver growth in the year ahead.

He added: "Our strategic review is ongoing and we are looking to sell assets that do not align with our core business.

"We are committed to selling the assets that are not core to our business and focusing on our core assets."
Taiwan asks banks to ensure enough cash in case of election nerves

In a move aimed at alleviating election-related nerves, Taiwan’s central bank has asked banks to ensure they have enough cash on hand to meet potential demand.

The government’s request comes as the country prepares to hold presidential and legislative elections, with the president’s term set to expire on Jan. 11. The current president, Tsai Ing-wen, is seeking re-election against a conservative challenger, Kuomintang Party’s Han Kuo-yu.

The central bank said it was normal to ask for increased liquidity in light of election uncertainty, but the request was unusual given the prospect of a relatively low-voltage campaign.

The move is part of efforts to ensure financial stability during the upcoming election period, which the central bank said was a “critical period” for economic and financial activities.

The central bank’s request reflects concerns about the potential for election-related nervousness to impact financial markets and the economy. The country has been relatively stable in recent years, with low inflation and stable exchange rates, but the upcoming election could introduce uncertainty.

In the past, Taiwan has experienced election-related nervousness, with financial markets reacting sharply to developments in the campaign. The central bank’s request is likely intended to address this potential risk and ensure a smooth transition between the current administration and the next.

In conclusion, Taiwan’s central bank’s request for increased liquidity ahead of the election is a prudent move to ensure financial stability. The government is taking proactive steps to mitigate any potential impact of election-related nervousness on financial markets and the economy. The country’s relatively stable record in recent years suggests that it is well-prepared to handle any election-related challenges.

WELLINGTON, Nov 30, (REUTERS): Kane Williamson scored a fifty and took control of the New Zealand innings yesterday to ensure a lead of over 500 against England at Westpac Stadium here yesterday. England’s pace attack had earlier given New Zealand’s batsmen a fright with a flurry of short-pitched deliveries, but when the tourists wobbled, New Zealand stood behind brilliant instant Mitchell and Watling and forged on. When I was sitting on zero I wasn’t that daunted,” Michael said. “To start with the ball and then stay there and then out they didn’t do any. But they bounced very well. They were very patient at times and batted and made good progress. They were putting in the hard work and taking the pressure off Henry to bounce back. England could have been even further in the mire had they not dropped Burns 11 and 12 at one point.
