The bidding:

East South West North
Pass 1 NT Pass 3 NT

Opening lead — king of clubs.

You may not agree with South's opening notrump bid or North's raise to three, but that's not the point of this story. The play's the thing in this deal, so let's get on with it.

West led the king of clubs. Declarer ducked, and West continued with the queen, dummy playing low again. Another club lead forced the ace, and East had to choose a discard.

Now if you were East and saw only dummy's hand and your own, what would you discard at this point?

The winning play is to discard the queen of diamonds! If you do this, nothing can save declarer, who would go down two with normal play.

But if you don't get rid of the queen, South makes the contract. He leads a diamond from dummy at trick four, and, when you play the queen, he lets you hold the trick. As a result, he winds up with five diamond tricks, two spades, a heart and a club.

A very good case can be made for discarding the queen of diamonds. If declarer has the A-K-J, the queen is worthless. If declarer is missing one of these honors, it means that West has the ace, king or jack as a potential entry to his clubs, and the queen once again serves no useful purpose.

When the hand occurred, however, East failed to appreciate the importance of jettisoning the queen of diamonds and discarded the three of hearts instead.

But the fates were kind to him. Declarer, paying no heed to the appearance of East's queen, won the first diamond with the king. South continued with the ace, hoping the jack would fall, but it didn't.

Declarer could then do no better than give up a diamond to West's jack to finish down two, thereby proving that two wrongs sometimes do make a right.

Tomorrow: Test your play.

Find at least six differences in details between panels.

Differences: 1. Jacket sleeve is longer. 2. Robe is longer. 3. Stove knob is moved. 4. Tray is longer. 5. Thumb is larger. 6. Coffee pot on stove is larger.
