Al-Roudhan speaks at General Conference of UNIDO

The Kuwaiti minister also addressed the UNIDO General Conference in Abu Dhabi on Monday, where he highlighted the importance of promoting sustainable development and achieving the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

KUWAIT CITY, Nov 5: During the General Conference of UNIDO, which concluded on Thursday, His Excellency the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, Khaled Al-Roudhan, attended a series of meetings and attended the General Conference held in the Egyptian capital, where he expressed his country’s keenness to support the conference and attend the events held during the conference.

Al-Roudhan stressed the importance of using the outcomes of the conference, especially in the field of sustainable development and achieving the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development.

He also emphasized the need to accelerate political will and promote a culture of development and the importance of the role of the private sector, which he said is key to achieving sustainable development.

Speaking at the opening session of the conference, the minister called on countries to adopt a more constructive approach to achieving the goals of the 2030 Agenda and the Sustainable Development Goals.

The conference, which is held every four years, brings together representatives from 170 countries to discuss the latest developments in the UNIDO’s work and its contribution to achieving the Sustainable Development Goals.

Al-Roudhan noted that the Kuwait government has always been committed to sustainable development and has made significant efforts in this field.

He stressed the need for countries to work together in implementing the SDGs and underscored the importance of cooperation between governments and the private sector.

The minister also praised the role of the private sector in achieving sustainable development and called for more efforts to mobilize private sector participation in this field.

Al-Roudhan highlighted the importance of technology and innovation in achieving sustainable development and stressed the need for countries to invest in research and development.

He also spoke about the importance of investing in education and training to prepare future generations to face the challenges of sustainable development.

The minister concluded his speech by emphasizing the need for countries to work together to achieve the 2030 Agenda and the Sustainable Development Goals.

The conference concluded on Thursday, with the adoption of a declaration that will guide the work of UNIDO in the coming years.

Al-Roudhan said that the conference was successful and that the outcomes will be a guide for the work of UNIDO in the coming years.

He expressed his hope that the conference will contribute to achieving the Sustainable Development Goals and that the world will make progress in this field.

Al-Roudhan also called on countries to continue to work together in achieving the goals of the 2030 Agenda and the Sustainable Development Goals.

The conference kicked off on Sunday, under the theme “Innovation and communication: changing the narrative”. The event was attended by ministers, officials and representatives of 170 countries participating in the event, set to conclude on Thursday.

The meeting discusses policies aiming to achieve the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the 17 SDGs.
