Although the regime spent billions for such purposes, its food policy proved a failure for both economic and humanitarian reasons, according to an analysis by James Jeffrey, who was a senior diplomat during the Clinton administration.

Responding to the questions about what he would do to prevent Iran from advancing its nuclear weapons capability, he criticized several countries for not imposing enough sanctions. "I think a lot of countries, including our allies, have not been doing enough," he said.

Kuwait's Health Minister, Dr. Ahmad Al-Sabah, expressed his concern about the incidents and called on the government to take more action to prevent such occurrences. He emphasized the importance of addressing the concerns of the Kuwaiti citizens and ensuring their safety and security.

The minister stressed that the government is committed to providing high-quality healthcare services and ensuring the safety and security of its citizens. He said the government is taking all necessary steps to address the concerns and prevent similar incidents from happening again.

Kuwait takes second look at the complexities of Mideast conflict

The Kuwaiti government has taken a second look at the complexities of the Mideast conflict and is considering ways to achieve its intended goals.

Kuwaiti government officials have been discussing the situation and are exploring options to achieve the goals. They have been examining various strategies and are considering the best course of action.

They said they are considering different options and are willing to explore new avenues to achieve their goals. They added that they are committed to finding a solution to the conflict and are willing to make the necessary changes.

The dangers of e-smoking

By Ahmad al-Masoud

The global use of e-cigarettes has a dramatically increased in the last two years, and the number of addicts has increased by 20 million in the Arab world, especially among young people, the main victims of the world. A survey con- ducted in six countries, including the United States and the United States, shows that while adult smokers know that e-smoking is a disease and understands that e-smoking is advantageous, especially in the Arab world.

But as awareness campaigns grow, the use of e-cigarettes in Britain and the United States be- gan to decline, especially after the authorities banned the dangers of this phenomenon. Many Arabs smoke traditional cigarettes, which is evident of the failure of these addicts to get rid of ordinary to- bacco smoking.

Electronic cigarettes are con- sidered to be a safer alternative to tobacco cigarettes and tobacco products where smoking is a per- nicious habit and the most com- mon path.

The phenomenon shows that the use of less harmful drugs carries a limit to the harm caused by tobacco smoking, but that vaping may be a “gateway” to less harmful drugs carries a fear among public health officials and the main concern and the most com- mon among mid-aged men who also smoke traditional cigarettes, which is evident of the failure of these addicts to get rid of ordinary tobacco smoking.

Electronic cigarettes are con- sidered to be a safer alternative to tobacco cigarettes and tobacco products where smoking is a pernicious habit and the most common path.

Kuwaitization policy helps employ 527 citizens at the co-op societies

List of posts compiled

KUWAIT CITY, Nov 25: The efforts exerted by Ministry of Social Affairs to replace expatriates under the Kuwaitization policy has resulted in the employment of 527 citizens in supervisory positions at cooperative societies. The citizens in question have since started working in their respective positions, reports Al-Qabas daily.

The daily quoting reliable sources said a team formed with representatives from the ministry, cooperative societies, and its union to implement Kuwaitization has compiled a list of supervisory positions available in each cooperative society where citizens will be replacing expatriates in a total of 1490 jobs. They pointed out that Kuwaitization of jobs in cooperative societies constitutes 42 percent of the total vacancies targeted but there are obstacles preventing full implementation of the policy in all supervisory positions targeted.

Meanwhile, Undersecretary at the Ministry of Affairs Abdul-Aziz Sabah recently stated the issue of Kuwaitization is a general policy in the ministry, noting the percentage of Kuwait in supervisory positions in cooperative societies has increased significantly in recent years. He pointed to the existence of a quadrilateral protocol between government in agencies toward Kuwaitization in the cooperative societies’ sector.

He pointed out that the ministry launched the initiative in cooperation with the Ministry of Social Affairs represented by the Union of Cooperative Societies that deals with the replacement of citizens in cooperative societies, adding appointments in 2019 exceeded 500 positions in 30 cooperative societies.

He reiterated the implementation of Kuwaitization policy in a decision taken by the Council of Ministers that there are jobs that need the expertise of expatriates except that “we are striving to hire Kuwaitis with experience to occupy such positions.”

Don’t block results of non-paying students: MoE

KUWAIT CITY, Nov 29. With the approach of the mid-year exams, the Ministry of Education has called for all students to work on the instructions of their teachers, in order to avoid blocking the results of the students due to the submission of wrong private school forms, which may lead to asking for the exams of certain subjects. The circular stressed the need to notify the students’ guardians about the reasons of the exam results, and sign the report in order to allow the student to submit the grievance. As a result, Kuwait Petroleum Corporations (KPC) has started taking steps to loan $11 billion to the debt program of KPC at an interest rate of 5.75% under a three-year contract. Sources explained KPC’s plan was shelved after getting approval of the Cabinet earlier this year to loan KDD billions.

About 90 percent illegal shops in Jleeb, Hassawi sealed; encroachments razed

Power supply cut to homes occupied by bachelors

KUWAIT CITY, Nov 25: The Municipality continues its campaign to “clean up” Jleeb Al-Shuyoukh and Al-Hassawi areas, and about 90 percent of the shops in Muhammad Bin Al-Qasim Street have been closed.

In his role, Deputy Director General of the Municipal Authority Alhamad Shatian Al-Sayyad announced the campaign witnessed the closure of shops and removal of illegally erected shades, in addition to cutting the power supply to shops violating the law.

Shatian said he is responsible for the implementation of the anti-road encroachment and anti-illegal construction campaign in the two areas.

He explained that the campaign witnessed the closure of shops and removal of illegally erected shades, in addition to cutting the power supply to shops violating the law.

Border patrol plugs two openings with Iraq

The Ministry of Interior has surrendered the two openings made deliberately to help the Qatari businessman because the latter issued him a clearance paper for the farms in Sulaibiya which he agreed to give to a Qatari businessman in exchange for the farms in Hail, which he said belong to him.

Confidence lost: Esper

Pentagon chief fires Navy secretary over controversy

Secretary of Defense Mark Esper fired the Navy's top official, causing him to lose "trust and confidence," according to a Navy officer who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss internal matters.

The situation escalated again Saturday.

On Wednesday, the Navy had notified Gallagher that he would face a Navy SEAL review board to determine if he should be allowed to remain in the elite force. While Trump then ordered Gallagher's case to be considered by a military jury, the Navy Secretary, Navies Commandant Richard Spencer, had already proposed a deal with the White House behind Trump's back to resolve the SEAL's case. Trump has championed the matter of Navy Chief Petty Officer Edward Gallagher, who was acquitted of murder in the stabbing death of a civilian but convicted of attempted murder and other charges resulting from the killing of three insurgents. The president's decision was a dramatic turn in the feud between the White House and the Pentagon's top civilian official, Esper, who had lost confidence in Esper over a controversy about the strength of the Democratic Party. If he wins another term in office, Trump a second term next November. (AP)

Ginsburg released from hospital:

The 86-year-old Ginsburg has been released from a Baltimore hospital where she had been treated for a tumor on her pancreas and irritation of the stomach. She had lung cancer surgery in December and received radiation treatment for a tumor on her pancreas in July. She had a rare absence from a public session of the court in mid-November before being transferred from Baltimore Memorial Hospital to Johns Hopkins for further analysis and treatment of any pending cases. She was initially evaluated at Sibley Memorial Hospital in Washington before being transferred from Hopkins for a second opinion of the tumor. House votes to oversee White House:

The House of Representatives Wednesday approved a resolution ordering the director of national intelligence to submit to the House Intelligence Committee a record of his communications with members of President Donald Trump's administration. Adam Schiff, the chairman of the panel, contended that if president Barack Obama had buckled under the pressure to consider President Donald Trump's request in 2017 to declassify documents related to Russia's interference in the 2016 election, it would have ended up voting to support impeachment. Schiff said he wants to talk with colleagues and witnesses before making a decision on impeachment. Schiff said he wants to talk with colleagues and witnesses before making a decision on impeachment. Thieves grab jewels worth 'up to a billion euros' in Dresden

Theft of museum treasures has cast a shadow over Dresden, the historic capital of the state of Saxony, after thieves made off with jewels and other treasures valued at "up to a billion euros," Bild newspaper reported on Monday.

No immediate comment from police

The museum, known as the Green Vault, is home to one of Europe's largest collections of fine art, including paintings, sculptures, and precious artifacts. It is housed in the former Baroque city palace and was built in the 18th century by August the Strong, Elector of Saxony and later King of Poland.

The theft of the artifacts is a significant blow to the city, which relies on tourism from visitors interested in its rich cultural history. Dresden, situated on the Elbe River, is a popular destination known for its historic architecture and cultural landmarks.

"Parties peddling fantasies"

Britain in a dangerous mess: former PM Blair

LONDON, Nov 25 (AP) — Former prime minis- ter Tony Blair said on Monday that Britain was in a "dangerous mess" and that neither his own Labour Party nor the governing Conservative Party had a credible plan for leaving the European Union.

"We're in trouble," Blair said at a Brussels conference.

Blair, a socialist who was once seen as a possible contender to lead the Labour Party, said Labour must work hard to prevent a Brexit deal that would be "a disaster for Britain." He said that both major parties were peddling fantasies, adding that the Labour Party's support among younger voters had been "weak" for the last six months.

Italian ‘sardines’ take on Salvini

A lot more is at stake in January regional elections

REGGIO EMILIA, Italy, Nov 25 (Reuters) — Italy has had many colourful political symbols over the years, including oak trees, olive trees and daisies. Now, a new symbol has emerged in the south of the country — a group of people holding signs of that colour.

The movement is the brainchild of a 32-year-old journalist named Danilo Santoni, who said he started using the signs to protest against Italy's far-right leader Matteo Salvini, who is the leader of the League party and looking to win the national elections on Jan. 26.

"We want to say we can do better than populism and chaos," Santoni said.

The movement is the latest in a series of protest movements that have emerged in Italy in recent months, including the "End the Chaos" movement and the "Italian Beverages" movement.

France pledges millions for floods

France has pledged to send €10 million to help rebuild the Italian city of Reggio Emilia, which was hit by severe flooding on Sunday.

"We have decided to send €10 million to help Reggio Emilia recover," French Interior Minister Laurent Nunez said on Monday.

The French government has also earmarked funds for other areas hit by flooding in Italy, including Florence and Pistoia.

French Prime Minister Edouard Philippe told journalists in a press conference on Sunday that "France is ready to do everything to support Italy in this difficult moment." He also said that the French government would send a delegation to Italy to help coordinate the relief efforts.

5 dead as rain hits France, Italy

Rain has lashed France and Italy, causing at least five deaths and leaving many people stranded in their homes.

Some roads remained closed Monday on the French Riviera, and four of the five deaths were confirmed in the city of Nice. The fifth death occurred in the Italian region of Campania.

The Italian region of Campania has been hit by severe flooding in recent days, with at least 130 people killed and thousands homeless.

"We must set about the urgent task of recon- structing Britain"

Tony Blair, an opponent of Brexit, argued for a second referendum on the decision to leave, saying it would be "a disaster for Britain." He said that both major parties were peddling fantasies, adding that the Labour Party's support among younger voters had been "weak" for the last six months.

Blair said the Labour Party was in a "dangerous mess" and that neither his own Labour Party nor the governing Conservative Party had a credible plan for leaving the European Union.

Blair said he was not ruling out a second referendum, but that it would have to be done in a "serious" and "responsible" way.

"We must set about the urgent task of recon- structing Britain," he added.

Rising heat steals jobs, lives in India

BEIJING/NEW DELHI, India, Nov 29 (Reuters) - "It's very hot out here," said Monu Sahoo, a 38-year-old laborer who works in the hot sun in Kolkata to earn a living. "I'm sweating all over."

"Today my weekly earnings have fallen to just 700 rupees ($9.54) a day - not even half what I used to make when the outside temperature reached above 35ºC (95ºF)."

"That's why I start my work very early - at 6 am - so I don't have to work in the heat," Sahoo said. "But even now, it's very uncomfortable."

In the Indian state of Odisha, which has one of the highest temperatures in the country, the heat is so intense that many workers have to take breaks every hour or two to avoid heat exhaustion.

"The heat makes it impossible to work," said Prakash Jena, a laborer in the town of Bhubaneswar. "I wash my buckets and brushes at the end of another shift, but by the next day, it's all over again."

"I have two kids to feed," Jena said. "How can a family survive on this?"

Sahoo, Jena and other workers are part of a growing crisis in India as rising temperatures make it increasingly difficult to work in the heat.

"The Indian government has yet to take any effective action to address this problem," said Jina, an economist at the Tata Centre for Development Studies in Ahmedabad.

"But a report released by the United Nations' Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC) in 2018 showed that India could lose nearly 6% of its gross domestic product by 2100 due to heat stress."

"There is no sign of a slowdown, let alone a reversal," said Anna Schindler, head of smart city initiatives for the city of Zurich.

"As the city's population expands, it will become more difficult to cope with the heat."

"We need to find ways to make cities more resilient to heat stress," she added.

"The time to act is now."

BACELONDA, Nov 25 (Reuters) - High-tech solutions to make cities greener are already here - from local initiatives to global projects.

"There is no sign of a slowdown, let alone a reversal," said Anna Schindler, head of smart city initiatives for the city of Zurich.

"As the city's population expands, it will become more difficult to cope with the heat."

"A sly thief!"

The concentration of carbon dioxide, a product of burning fossil fuels that is the main driver of climate change, is now at a record high.

"There is no sign of a slowdown, let alone a reversal," said Anna Schindler, head of smart city initiatives for the city of Zurich.

"Los Angeles: Disney's `Frozen 2' has reached another milestone, becoming the fifth highest-grossing film of all time. The animated adventure film, which tells the story of a young girl named Elsa who possesses the power to control ice, has surpassed `Toy Story 4' in domestic box office earnings, according to studio estimates Sunday. With $1.42 billion in domestic ticket sales, `Frozen 2' moves past the $1.41 billion total of `Toy Story 4,' which held the top spot since August. `Frozen 2' also supplanted `Toy Story 4' as the highest-grossing film of 2019 in North America. The Disney animated film has made a robust $2.86 billion internationally, bringing its global total to $4.28 billion, making it the highest-grossing film of 2019 worldwide. `Frozen 2' also becomes the latest Disney release to pass the $1 billion mark at the global box office. The film has generated $223 million for a streaming platform Disney+. The success of `Frozen 2' is a significant milestone for Disney, which has been focused on expanding its streaming业务 in recent years. The company is expected to report its fourth quarter and fiscal year results later this month.

Diahann Carroll, the Oscar-nominated actress was remembered for all she accomplished. Her remarks Sunday came amid a public battle between Swift and the men who own the master recordings along with music manager Scooter Braun, the owners of her master recordings. She didn't mention the men during her acceptance speeches. However, she thanked her record label, Universal and I also really love my record label, Universal Republic. Monte Lipman, Lucian Grainge, thank you for being so generous to me and allowing me to make whatever music I want to make. Thank you for being so generous to me. Universal.

"The little one who wanted to follow in her footsteps became more apparent. It was on that film where she and Whitfield worked together, but Whitfield considered using Carroll's scenes as an 11-year-old since she was a 20-year-old. But with each performance and commitment, she said, "I found Lauryn Farbota, one of several who spoke to the legacy on Sunday at the Memorial Theater. Farbota is a private investor, actress, and businesswoman who has worked with Carroll in various films and television shows. "As she grew up, her difficulties became more apparent. The vision she had for herself and the doors she opened for so many more women of color. Whitfield remembered seeing Carroll decades earlier on stage when she was a girl - "my awestruck introduction to the stunning woman. She was a home-coming, and Corsie Turner, who lovingly remembered her as Aunt D, recalled growing up with Carroll on the set of their shows. She saw the future, and it began then."

KOC and AUK announce winners of Oil & Gas Techathon 2019

KUWAIT CITY, Nov 25: Kuwait Oil Company (KOC) and American University of Kuwait (AUK) announce winners of Oil & Gas Techathon 2019, a student competition organized for the students of Computer Science and Information Technology from various universities around the world. The winners were announced at the closing ceremony of the event on Wednesday. The event was attended by a large number of attendees, including dignitaries from the Ministry of Higher Education, Kuwait Oil Company, AUK, and students from various universities.

The main topics of challenges were oil & gas refining, geology, graphic design, and business. The AUK has found an important collaborative project with KOC, which can lead to reductions in financial costs, errors, and errors in electric submersible pumps, consisting of predictive modeling and analysis.

Mental health is an increasingly common cause of student stress and academic performance issues. Many universities have responded by expanding mental health services, including counseling centers, to meet the growing demand for mental health support.

Counseling centers provide a variety of services, including individual and group counseling, crisis intervention, and short-term therapy. These centers are often staffed by licensed therapists, psychologists, and counselors who are trained to help students navigate a range of issues, from academic stress to mental health concerns.

One of the challenges facing counseling centers is the waitlist for services. Many universities have reported long wait times for appointments, with some students waiting for months to see a counselor. To address this issue, some universities have implemented triage systems, where students are screened for urgency and offered same-day or urgent care services. Others have expanded their online counseling services, offering virtual appointments.

Despite these efforts, there is still a need for more mental health services on college campuses. Many students report feeling hesitant to seek help, either due to stigma or fear of judgment. As a result, many students may be going without the support they need.

In conclusion, counseling centers play a crucial role in promoting mental health on college campuses. By providing accessible and confidential services, these centers can help students navigate the challenges of college life and improve their overall well-being.

DUBAI, Nov 25 (Reuters) - Dubai said on Monday it planned to increase its LNG production by 2027 to 126 million tonnes per year, putting oil majors racing to secure a stake in the Gulf country’s expansion of facilities to aid in a fuel switch to help meet climate goals.

Dubai could attract 1 million foreign visitors to the Expo 2020 world’s fair this year, up on the back of potential visitor flows to the event, which will temporarily present on hotels and retailers, helping Dubai’s economy – buoyed by tourism – to uniy in a recovery from the coronavirus pandemic.

Dubai’s economy – buoyed by tourism and residential property prices slip by over a quarter since 2014. However, it is unlikely to materialize because of Dubai’s real estate market, S&P Global Ratings said in a statement. But it has faced a slowing real estate market for most of the decade, hurt by a glut in the rental market. Dubai’s economy and its business structure helped it maintain economic stability helped it maintain economic stability and its business structure helped it maintain economic stability.

Saudi Arabian Oil Co (SAUDI ARAMCO) has sold its Qatari stake in the North Field, the world’s biggest natural gas field, to Qatar Petroleum for $10 billion, the companies said on Monday. Kaabi told Reuters in September that Qatar would sell its stake in the North Field to raise money for future projects. Kaabi said the sale would help Qatar fund its future projects. Kaabi said the sale would help Qatar fund its future projects. The proceeds would be used to fund future projects.

KUWAIT CITY, Nov 25. While the recognition of Kuwait’s government on the oil market was badly surprising Feyhan Hussein, the oil minister, and in its elected parliament has led to the recognition of several governments, it is likely to be a brutal reality at the oil market. The country’s GDP growth is expected to be led by lower oil prices, and its general economy is expected to be severely affected. But the low price of economic sectors around oil is more than enough in the current state of Kuwait.

Al-Fulaij said that Kuwait is a natural natural asset of its wealth, resources and in its current state. But the economic community, Kuwait has successfully insulated itself against the world democracy. But from a business robust nature of Kuwait’s parliament and the trickle down to small and medium-sized companies, says Al-Fulaij. There is a capital position, and are keen to provide solutions that cater to our customers’ needs and innovative products, services and solutions that link them to their daily corporate operations.

As a result, he says, all of Kuwait’s banks maintain higher levels of capital provisions than what is required by the international regulatory standards. This will allow NBK to continue to absorb higher losses or write-offs, and as a result, do not decrease its dividend. However, Al-Fulaij says that the bank is targeting a return on equity of about 10%.

A key factor in the bank’s success is its ability to operate in a healthy and efficient way. Al-Fulaij says that NBK’s capital adequacy ratio is well above the minimum regulatory requirements for the bank.

Al-Fulaij says that the bank is well placed to capitalise on the shifting landscape of the global oil market. The bank’s strong capital position and well-diversified income mix give it the flexibility to continue to invest in new businesses and opportunities.

Dubai, Nov 25, (B/W) All major Gulf bourses rose on Monday, taking a cue from global equity markets as investors turned optimistic about some progress in US-China trade talks, but Wall Street opened lower due to offset by a chip short.

A Chinese state-run newspaper reported that Beijing and Washington were “very close” to an initial public offering agreement to openings from Friday, when the president of both banks met in Dubai.

In the meantime, the benchmark index, which was triggered following a funding boom especially in energy, said raised funds are to be used for several uses.

The jump in buying has prompted Saudi Arabia’s central bank to make the official lending rate a key tool for the central bank.

The index added 323 fils on back of 2.5 million shares whereas Kuwait International Financial Institutions Inc. (KIFC) clipped 1 fil after trading 9.2 million shares.

BEIJING, Nov 25, (AP): China needs to resolve outstanding financial risks and must counter risks from "unusual" market fluctuations that stem from external shocks, said the central bank’s top official on Monday, as Beijing prioritizes financial stability amid increasing challenges.

China’s benchmark equities are highly sensitive to global trade situations and rising uncertainties in global liquidity, said the People’s Bank of China (PBOC) in its annual financial-stability report, adding that it will make up for real-time supervision on stock, bond, foreign exchange and deposit markets.

Bank loans may continue, so authorities must prevent the risks of such triggering systemic risks, it said, while warning on regulatory violations in the security sector.

Beijing has stepped up daily supervision and assessment on potential "black box" events and "gray" risks that may result in a systemic financial crisis, with inspections focused on downloading pressures on the economy, said the PBOC.

China’s benchmark lending rate rose to 4.2% relative to three domestic-product (GBP) by the end of 2018, 2.8% up from global single-digit and peak debt risks in some regions and at higher income levels.

The central bank reiterated that China’s financial sector is well regulated and a policy and monetary policy is directed to increase the services and improve the circulation of China’s local government-spurred social bonds used to fund infrastructure projects by a large margin.

Looking ahead, the PBOC will take its credit supply to better boost the consumption and drive the GDP in achieving growth and funding offshoots. Meanwhile, China's financial risks have been closely monitored by the central bank, as the PBOC added that potential risks will go on to diminish.

By the end of last year, 1.5% of China’s 4,719 financial institutions, mostly rural and urban institutions, were rated as "at risk" by the PBOC at the annual level of the industry. That compared with the previous year’s 1.8% of institutions that failed the PBOC’s 2018 test.

It is also developing and exporting a standard system of required financial performances and will be used as a market-based and diversified approach for financial institutions to exit the market.

Global equity markets rally on revived trade hopes; gold dips

LVMH boosts European shares to one-week high

NEW YORK, Nov 25 (Reuters) - Gold fell for a fourth straight session and global equity markets rallied on Monday, with the Nasdaq and S&P 500 hitting new highs on revived hopes the United States and China could soon sign an interim deal to end their prolonged trade war.

The U.S. equity benchmark and the main stock market in Asia both rose about 1% on Monday, with the FTSE 100 index closing 4% higher, even as Brexit negotiations took place in Brussels.

However, the mood remains fragile and the chance of a deal is far from certain, with much more to be negotiated.

Australia's S&P/ASX 200 index rose 0.6% and gains for Indian shares were led by a 2% surge in Infosys, while Japanese, South Korean and Taiwanese indices also gained.

It is too early to call the end of the trade war, said Jeff Handy, an economist at CMC Markets in Sydney. “It is a matter of whether they can agree on some basic principles.”

The mood is pretty positive at this point, and I think we are more or less seeing through the noise of the trade talk,” Handy said.

Stronger global growth prospects and a cut in interest rates by the U.S. Federal Reserve the previous week were also boosting sentiment.

The mood is also helped by a forecast for China's manufacturing activity to pick up in December, suggesting the nation's economy may be starting to recover.

China will reach a trade deal.

In London, the FTSE 100 index gained 0.4% to hit a one-week high and was headed to the best weekly performance since mid-October, boosted by gains in miners and banks.

China is a key market for many U.S. and European companies, and a deal would boost global trade and sentiment.

The mood is likely to remain positive for China, and I think it would be good for both economies and the world over,” said James DeHaven, chief investment officer at Analysts' Insights.

The mood is also helped by a forecast for China's manufacturing activity to pick up in December, suggesting the nation's economy may be starting to recover.

The 49ers harass Rodgers, wild-card dominoes fall in AFC

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov 25, (RTBS): The San Francisco 49ers’ defense held Aaron Rodgers to just 184 yards passing while sacking him five times en route to a 37-10 rout of the Green Bay Packers on Sunday night in Santa Clara, Calif.

After Rodgers’ defense dominated early, the Niners’ defense then took over and shut down the Packers’ offense for the rest of the game. Rodgers finished the game with 184 yards passing, but was sacked five times, which is the most in a single game for Rodgers.

The 49ers’ defense had a dominant performance, allowing just 184 yards passing and forcing five turnovers. The Packers never got into a rhythm on offense, and the defense held Rodgers to his lowest passing yards in a start since 2013.

The win moves the 49ers to 6-5 on the season, while the Packers fall to 5-6.

Tickets for the game are available at the local box office or through the team’s website.
