Kuwait row has endless roots

"Need to tackle crisis urgently"

I WILL not delve into the details of the current crisis between Kuwait and Iraq, but only mention that this crisis is not new, according to the Kuwaiti minister of education and minister of higher education and scientific research, Ali Al-Mutairi, who said that the crisis is a result of the American economic sanctions and the political differences between the two countries.

In a media conference held in Kuwait on Tuesday, Al-Mutairi said that the crisis is not new and that it has been going on for a long time, as he quoted the Kuwaiti minister of education and minister of higher education and scientific research, Ali Al-Mutairi, who said that the crisis is a result of the American economic sanctions and the political differences between the two countries.

The crisis has been ongoing for many years, with each country accusing the other of violating international law and norms. The Kuwaiti government has called for a solution to the crisis, but so far, it has been unable to resolve it.

Al-Mutairi said that the crisis has caused many problems, including the closure of the borders and the suspension of flights, which has affected the economy and the daily lives of the people.

The Kuwaiti government has also called for a peaceful solution to the crisis, and has urged both countries to return to the negotiating table and find a way to resolve the differences.

PAHW cancels housing applications of citizens who got divorced, have no kids

3 pc rise seen in airport passenger traffic in August

KUWAIT CITY, Sept 7: The Public Authority for Housing Welfare (PAHW) issued an internal memo to cancel the housing applications of male citizens who got divorced after submitting their applications provided they have no children, reported Al-Qabas daily quoting sources.

Sources explained the authority based its decision on Article Eight of the housing care regulations which allows the administration to cancel the application in case of the wife’s death and the couple has no children, indicating the same applies to divorced men without children.

Sources said 7,000 out of 93,000 housing applications are covered by the decision as per the latest statistics issued by PAHW. Sources added those whose applications are cancelled will be included in the waiting list once they get married with a new application based on the marriage certificate.

It is worth mentioning that cancellation of the housing applications of divorced men who have no children wait one of the points in the prilling motion against former Minister of Housing Adil Al-Sabah who presented a vision on solving the housing issue.

Misuse, damage of gas cylinders creates financial burden for country, says KOTC

KUWAIT CITY, Sept 7: Kuwait Oil Tankers Company (KOTC) affirmed that misuse of gas cylinders in the local market creates extra financial burden for the state, adding the cost can be reduced if cylinders are well managed with cooperation between concerned authorities and consumers.

In a press release, the company emphasized the need for cooperation among commercial and private consumers to preserve the cylinders. It explained that 12-kilogram cylinders used for commercial activities are cogitated for private usage, while 25-kilogram cylinders used for commercial activities are cogitated for private usage.

It added that 12-kilogram cylinders used for commercial activities are cogitated for private usage, while 25-kilogram cylinders used for commercial activities are cogitated for private usage.

The company also added that cylinders are due to accumulation of H1H in the commercial sector, especially in some restaurants, coffee shops and barbeques.

Opp’n rejects ‘election call’

LONDON, Sept 7 (AP): British Prime Minister Boris Johnson again flatly refused Friday, as opposition parties refused to support him, to call for an election as he seeks to force through his Brexit plan.

Johnson, addressing the House of Commons, said a general election was not the way to deal with a “deadlock” over the Brexit issue. “This is not our job to clean up: it’s the politicians’ job,” he said.

Johnson’s exit from the European Union is blocked Friday, as opposition parties called for a general election. In the absence of an agreement, the U.K. could crash out of the EU on Oct. 31 without a deal.

Cracks in Government

Johnson’s decision to refuse an election has divided his Conservative Party, with some ministers opposing him.

Johnson faced a parliamentary vote Friday to decide whether to begin preparations for a general election. Johnson’s office said he would veto any attempt to force a general election in the autumn unless the government secured a Brexit deal.

Trump administration officials discuss slashing refugee cap

WASHINGTON, Sept 7 (AP): The officials of Donald Trump administration will meet next week to discuss whether to further restrict the number of refugees accepted into the United States, after the previous administration lifted travel restrictions on people from seven Muslim-majority countries.

The officials from the Department of Homeland Security, the State Department and the Department of Justice are scheduled to meet Wednesday.

Some Trump administration officials believe that the cap should be lowered because of the number of asylum seekers at the U.S.-Mexico border.

The number of refugees accepted into the United States is set at 120,000 this fiscal year, down from 30,000 in 2016.

Two starring roles

Johnson & Salvini lose political bets

ROME, Sept 7 (AP) - Who would have thought that two of the stars of the 2019 European political political drama would be Justin Trudeau, the Canadian prime minister, and Matteo Salvini, Italy’s interior minister?

But both men have lost their political bets, and both are now sweating the outcome of elections that could see them pushed to the political sidelines.

Trudeau’s political fate was sealed when Parliament was suspended on Tuesday, after he prod- uced a petition with the backing of 151 MPs demanding a new election to end the impasse over a法案 that would have allowed criminal suspects to be sent to the mainland.

In Italy, Salvini, who is the leader of the far-right League party, has been struggling to maintain his position as the deputy prime minister and interior minister.

Both men have been hit by a combination of political, economic, and social factors that have undermined their popularity and support.

Trudeau’s decision to call an election was seen as a risky move, as it came at a time when his government was facing a number of challenges, including a possible economic downturn and a surge in support for separatist movements in Quebec.

Salvini’s decision to call an election was also seen as a risky move, as it came at a time when his party was facing a number of challenges, including a possible economic downturn and a surge in support for separatist movements in Lombardy.

The results of the elections will be crucial for both men, as they could determine the outcome of their political careers.

The European political drama continues to unfold, with new surprises and challenges likely to emerge in the coming weeks.

Indian govt announces SPDC scheme for diaspora children

KUWAIT CITY, Sept 7: The Government of India’s scholarship programme, which was launched by the Government of India (in the academic year 2008-2009 for the children of Persons of Indian Origin ( PIO) and Non-Resident Indians ( NRI) living in 64 countries — to assist them in pursuing education in India. The scholarship provides financial assistance for specific undergraduate professional and vocational courses (except medicine and dental courses) towards tuition, admission fees and post-admission for up to thirty-six months. The scholarship is available for the undermentioned courses: Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Technology, Bachelor of Commerce, Bachelor of Business Administration, Bachelor of Engineering, Bachelor of Law, Master of Science, Master of Technology, Master of Commerce, Master of Business Administration, Master of Engineering, Master of Law, Master of Business Administration, Master of Computer Applications, Master of Computer Applications, and Post Graduate Diploma in Computer Applications.

The Indian government introduced the Scheme for Diaspora Children (SPDC) in 2009 to provide financial assistance to children of Persons of Indian Origin (PIO) and Non-Resident Indians (NRI) living abroad who wish to pursue higher education in India.

The SPDC scheme aims to help the children of PIOs and NRIs to realize their dreams of pursuing higher education in India. The scheme offers financial assistance for undergraduate, postgraduate, and professional courses. Most of the courses covered under the SPDC scheme are in fields such as science, technology, engineering, and management.

The scheme has contributed significantly to the education of children of PIOs and NRIs, who now have the opportunity to study in India's prestigious universities and colleges. It has also helped in strengthening the bond between India and its diaspora community.

In conclusion, the Scheme for Diaspora Children (SPDC) has been a successful initiative in helping children of PIOs and NRIs to pursue higher education in India. The scheme's financial assistance has enabled many children to realize their dreams of studying in India, contributing to the diaspora community's growth and development.

Facebook is tackling a new frontier: love. Facebook Dating, a match-making service, will offer in Brazil, Canada and 17 other countries in the US, on Thursday. But after years of privacy scandals and controversies, concern remains about Facebook's use of personal data. For a company that's creating a digital currency and is already in financial services longer, can it also help Facebook make money if it keeps people glued to its other services longer?

The New York Times

Facebook Dating comes as the company is also doubling down on video and virtual meetings with users' private information, as it tries to prevent unwanted messages, bullies and scams. In September, it introduced a dating feature that could be a way to meet people they find attractive by sharing their photo, age and first name. The feature will eventually be rolled out to users in 19 countries.

Writers’ Forum marks India’s Independence Day

KUWAIT CITY, Sept 7: (Agenies): Saeed Nazar Kadpawi to preside the meeting, the Writers’ Forum Kuwait, an organization of Indian writers, marks the Independence Day of the country, “Alias Grace” and “The Handmaid’s Tale” are among those written by Margaret Atwood who has won the Man Booker Prize for fiction. The award has been backed by the writer’s fame as a prolific poet as well as her own. The writer was the first woman to be awarded the prize.

Atwood’s famous 1985 dystopian novel, “The Handmaid’s Tale,” tells the story of a woman who becomes a handmaid and a symbol of resistance in a totalitarian society. The book has been adapted into a television show and a feature film.

In 2000, Atwood was awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature, making her the first Canadian woman and the first Canadian to win the Nobel Prize in Literature. She has also won several other literary awards, including the Man Booker Prize, the Governor General’s Award for Fiction, and the PEN/Pablo Neruda Award for Poetry.

Atwood’s work has been translated into more than 40 languages and has sold millions of copies worldwide. She has also written other novels, short stories, and non-fiction pieces, and has been a prolific poet and essayist.
KFW, Xpress Money launch ‘ Kathiri’ partnership

KFW Group

5th September is celebrated as Indian Teachers’ Day as a token appreciation to the Teachers for their contribution made by teachers to the education sector. Teachers’ Day marks the celebration of the profession of teaching, and it’s a day to honor the contributions of teachers to education and the development of nations. It is also a day to express gratitude for the hard work and dedication of teachers in imparting knowledge and guiding students towards a prosperous future.

KFW, a leading financial services provider, has announced its partnership with Xpress Money, a Finablr company, to launch a financial solution for Indian expatriates in Kuwait, called ‘Kathiri’. This partnership aims to provide a seamless and convenient way for expatriates to send money to their loved ones in India, facilitating a financial solution that is accessible and user-friendly.

The launch of the Kathiri service marks a significant step in strengthening the relationship between KFW and Xpress Money, and it is designed to offer a convenient and reliable solution for expatriates to manage their financial needs. The Kathiri service is available for money transfers to India, and it is expected to attract a significant number of users who are looking for a trustworthy and easy-to-use solution for sending money to their family and friends.

KFW President, Vivek Menon, said, “Teachers’ Day is a special occasion to celebrate the dedication and hard work of teachers around the world. We at KFW are proud to launch the Kathiri service in partnership with Xpress Money, and we believe that this service will prove to be a valuable tool for expatriates in Kuwait and India. We are committed to providing our customers with the best possible service, and the Kathiri service is a testament to this commitment.”

Xpress Money President, Mohamed Ghanim, said, “We are delighted to partner with KFW to launch the Kathiri service. This service will provide a convenient and reliable solution for expatriates in Kuwait and India to send money to their loved ones. We are confident that the Kathiri service will be well-received by our customers, and we look forward to expanding our partnership with KFW to provide even more innovative financial solutions for our customers.”

Weight loss possible with psychiatric drugs: study

NEW YORK, Sept 7 (Reuters) - People who get even a little bit more of certain psychiatric medicines to treat mental health disorders may be more likely to lose weight, researchers in the United States said on Wednesday.

A total of 105 veterans developed lung cancer (NSCLC), a form of non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) that is sensitive to MET (c-Met) inhibitors, such as the drug isocoritine (Icto-Call), a US study suggests.

Researchers examined medical records of 2,792 patients who were diagnosed with lung cancer between 2010 and 2016, and who underwent surgery to remove the tumor. They found that 105 patients had lung cancer that was sensitive to MET inhibitors, and of these, 26 patients were treated with isocoritine (Icto-Call).

One of the patients was a 59-year-old man with lung cancer who was treated with isocoritine (Icto-Call) for 10 months. He had been treated with several other drugs, but his lung cancer continued to grow. He was then given isocoritine (Icto-Call) and his lung cancer began to shrink.

The study was published in the journal JAMA Psychiatry.

In the current analysis, participants who were not averse to treatment and who were given a treatment for at least 10 hours per week were more likely to have improved mental health than those who were not given treatment for at least 10 hours per week.

For 1007 patients who were given treatment for at least 10 hours per week, a total of 435 patients had improved mental health, compared with 171 patients who were not given treatment for at least 10 hours per week.

Turkey calls on US to lift barriers to boost trade

WASHINGTON, Sept 7, (RTKS) - US job growth slowed in August with retail hiring declining for a seventh straight month, but strong wage gains should support consumer spending and keep the economy expanding moderately amid rising trade tensions from Trump's tariffs.

The Labor Department's closely watched monthly employment report on Friday showed a gain of 130,000 jobs last month. While that was the fewest in nearly a year, it was slightly better than 120,000 predicted by economists. It was also revised up from 110,000.

The job gain was adjusted higher because the Labor Department revised upward the number of people returns from temporary work last month. The unemployment rate held steady at 3.7% and average earnings for workers rose by 0.5% month-to-month, in line with expectations. That raised annual earnings growth to 2.9%, from 2.8%.

Wages and salaries grew by 0.5% last month, pushed by temporary hiring of 25,000 workers for the 2020 census. The economy created 20,000 few jobs in June and July than previously thought. The government had forecast payrolls rising by 190,000 in July and 154,000 in June. The payroll data is used to calculate the gross domestic product, which is released on next Thursday.

The unemployment rate stayed at 3.7% instead of 3.6% because there were fewer people reporting as unemployed. The Labor Department revised down the number of people reporting as unemployed saying that 57,000 people were incorrectly counted as employed.

With a gain of 130,000, US payrolls have increased by 487,000 jobs over the last three months, with the economy having added 6.9 million jobs just since Trump took office. There were gains in several industries during talks on Saturday aimed at reducing the threat of new tariffs from the US.

US government under-secretary for international affairs, Said "If there isn't a last minute agreement, the US government would consider a small package that would allow existing cars to continue operating. The US could suspend the tariffs for a few months or a few weeks."

China's growing economy has made it an increasingly important player in global trade, with its trade deficit with the US running at a record high of $419 billion in August. The US has threatened to impose tariffs on $200 billion worth of Chinese goods, while China has responded with its own retaliatory measures.

The trade war has sparked concern among investors and businesses, with some calling for a resolution to the ongoing dispute. The US government has accused China of subsidies to state-owned enterprises and intellectual property theft, while China has denied the allegations.

In this context, the US government under-secretary for international affairs, said, "The US government is willing to negotiate with China on a range of issues, including intellectual property, technology transfer, and trade practices. We are open to the possibility of a resolution, but we will not back down on our core concerns.

China, on the other hand, has repeatedly stated that it will not accept any new tariffs imposed by the US. "We cannot accept any new tariffs, and we will take countermeasures," said Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson Geng Shuang.

However, the US government under-secretary for international affairs, said, "We are open to negotiations, but we will not back down on our core concerns. We expect China to make meaningful commitments to address our concerns."

EU warns Indonesia about ‘retaliating’ duties

JAKARTA, Sept 7 (Reuters) - European Union trade commissioner Cecilia Malmstrom said on Saturday the EU has no intention of escalating a probe into a $350 million dispute over EU spirits duties in Indonesia, which she said was not commercially justifiable.

EU sources say the trade mission in Jakarta has been meeting Indonesian officials about the duty every few months, but sources in the EU trade ministry last encountered Indonesia, which has threatened to retaliate with sanctions ranging from customs duties on EU goods to the imposition of a new tax on imports.

The duty, which has been in place since June 2016, is a result of a 2015-2016 EU duty dispute with Indonesia over EU-spirt-based alcoholic beverages that ended in July 2016.

EU officials said the trade mission in Jakarta has been meeting Indonesian officials about the duty every few months, but sources in the EU trade ministry last encountered Indonesia, which has threatened to retaliate with sanctions ranging from customs duties on EU goods to the imposition of a new tax on imports.

Crude prices down but still set for weekly gain

The trading arm of Nigeria’s state oil firm is leaving London to set up in Dubai, in a move that could allow the single biggest buyer of local oil to start exporting products it has previously sourced from Nigeria and other African oil producers.

The move by DStv also has tax advantages, as it would cut Nigeria's tax burden by 50%, said the people familiar with the matter, who asked to remain anonymous.

The new office would be run by a team of managers who have been working in Lagos, the country's commercial capital, said the sources familiar with the matter.

The move is expected to be completed within the next six months, said the sources.

The move is part of a broader strategy by DStv, which is one of Africa's largest media companies, to expand its market reach and increase its revenues in the region.

The company, whose headquarters are in Nairobi, Kenya, said it had already started discussions with local regulators and investors in Dubai about setting up a new office there.

The move comes as DStv faces increasing competition from other media companies in the region, including South Africa's MultiChoice and Zimbabwe's NetOne.

New York, Sept. 7 (Reuters): The S&P 500 posted a nominal gain and Treasury yields edged lower on Friday, as remarks from Federal Reserve chief Jerome Powell firmned interest rate cut expectations and China announced an economic stimulus package, both of which helped offset weaker-than-expected US job data.

The US labor market began with a flight to safety driven by trade tensions and weak manufacturing data, but positive growth indicators, such as US economic reports, suggest the US economy is on track for an end to a trade war that has been gathering pace.

China's economic growth slowed to its slowest pace in at least two decades, according to data released on Friday by the China National Bureau of Statistics, showing the world’s second-largest economy slipping into contraction in the third quarter from the second quarter.

The reports, based on data released on Friday, showed the country’s economy slowed to 6.2% in the third quarter, compared with 6.4% growth in the second quarter.

The data was weaker than expected, with economists forecasting a growth rate of 6.4%.

US shale firms cut budgets, staff as oil price outlook dims

By Jennifer Hill and Liz Hampton

Oil producers and their suppliers are cutting budgets, staffs and production goals amid a growing realization that tensions in Venezuela and other nations are driving down energy prices.

The US shale sector, which has been cutting oil and gas production to work within its cost structure and to avoid a cash crisis, has seen a downturn that has reduced the number of required wells, cut staffs and forced some to fall back into a type of similar services.

By the way we look at the business is tied to some very basic fundamentals that haven’t changed for decades, if not hundreds of years.

MONZA, Italy, Sept 7. (RTS) - Charles Leclerc put Ferrari on pole position at the Italian Grand Prix on Saturday, Austria's Sebastian Vettel second, giving the Maranello team its third pole in a row.

Leclerc's hard-earned pole is a testament to the team's dedication and hard work. It's the first time Ferrari has started a season with three consecutive poles, and it's a strong indication of their strength and determination.

Ferrari's dominance in the qualifying session is a result of their focus on improving every aspect of their cars. From aerodynamics to engine performance, they have made significant strides in recent races. This pole position is a crucial step towards securing another victory at the Italian Grand Prix.

The Italian Grand Prix, held at the famous Monza Circuit, is a highlight of the Formula 1 calendar. With its steep banking and tight corners, it's a true test of a driver's skill and a team's engineering prowess.

Leclerc's pole position means he will start the race from the front row, giving him a significant advantage over his competitors. However, the race is far from over, and many factors could come into play, such as weather conditions, strategy, and even a bit of luck.

Ferrari fans around the world are undoubtedly elated with this result and look forward to seeing how Leclerc and Vettel perform in the race. The Italian Grand Prix promises to be an exciting event, and Ferrari seems well-positioned to take advantage of their strong start.
Nadal beats Berrettini to reach US Open final

Daniil Medvedev, of Russia, returns a shot to Grigor Dimitrov, of Bulgaria, during the men’s singles semifinals of the US Open tennis championships on Sept 6 in New York.

Medvedev contains demons to oust Dimitrov

NEW YORK, Sept 7, (RTS): Rafael Nadal moved to within a win of his 20th grand slam title with a 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 victory over Grigor Dimitrov on Friday to reach his first US Open final.

"I will not say that I’m a kind person, but I’m a really calm person in life," said Nadal after the 1 hour 51 minute contest. "I’m a person who accepts the results and you can’t win all the times. I have respect for my opponents."

Nadal’s win will make him the oldest man to reach a US Open final, usurping the record he set with the victory of 2014. Nadal’s victory also meant that he will move past Roger Federer to become the third all-time Grand Slam singles title winner. Nadal now has 19 Grand Slam titles, one shy of Roger Federer’s record of 20.

Angola make positive start to W. Cup ’campaign’

Angola made positive start to their World Cup qualifying campaign with a 1-0 win over Togo in Luanda on Friday.

"It was a very, very tough match," said Angola coach Paulo Campos. "We were under pressure for most of the game, but we were able to hold our ground and get the win."

The win was Angola’s first in qualifying for the 2022 World Cup in Qatar, which begins in November 2022. The game was played in Luanda, Angola’s capital, and was watched by a small crowd of around 5,000 fans.

The match started well for Angola, with midfielder Tiago Mendes scoring just before the halfway mark. Togo, however, equalised with a goal from forward Pierre Ntep shortly after the restart.

However, Angola held on to their lead and could have added a second goal late in the game, but Togo goalkeeper Thomas observed the ball well to make several good saves.

The win moves Angola up to second place in Group C, behind leaders Morocco, who beat Botswana 2-1 in the other match.

"We are happy with the win, but we know there is still work to do," said Angola captain Carlos Jonas. "We need to improve our finishing and keep our concentration for the rest of the campaign."

The Tottenham Hotspur striker's 24 minutes and struck home two of the three goals as England thrashed their Group A opponents to secure a 3-0 win and vaulted them into second place in the group on 13 points from five games.

England hosted the Czech Republic on Friday to revive their hopes of qualifying for the Euro 2020 tournament, which would ensure they retain the urn, taking it into the European Championship.

But, once again, first innings double century star Jonny Bairstow fell cheaply for just 11 to spin Jack Leach, which was arrested by Ben Stokes in the deep to deny Australia a come-back win at Headingley. England made it to stumps with no wickets lost.
