Trump holds funding for ‘stay-at-home’ WHO

WASHINGTON, April 15, (Agencies) -- President Donald Trump said he would cut off US payments to the World Health Organization over its handling of the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, according to the original content.

THE COVID-19 pandemic has forced it to prioritize its work in the world, and, with millions of deaths in Korea and China, the WHO's goal is to fortify the Public Health system and to support the World's health. Trump's administration believed that the WHO's “absolutely critical” to the global effort against COVID-19, but the disease was caused by the coronavirus.

Guterres said that it is possible that the different ways in which they are trying to prevent the virus are preventing the WHO from operating as it should. The United States contributed more than 100% of WHO's budget for 2010-16, according to information on the agency's website. That represents more than 20% of the WHO's budget for those three years. The US government pledged a similar voluntary contribution and is still playing a key role as part of Washington's commitment to the WHO.

A more detailed WHO budget document shows that the US contribution in 2013 amounted to $27 million. The US government pledged a similar voluntary contribution and is still playing a key role as part of Washington's commitment to the WHO.

For Trump, the WHO's $57.9 million in 2020 was the most that it had been given in the United States in recent years. In fact, the US had invested nearly $900 million to the international health agency since 2009, according to a statement from the US State Department.

Other options may include the WHO's ability to distribute vaccines and the US's role in the World Health Organization (WHO). The WHO has been responsible for coordinating a global response to the COVID-19 pandemic and has been praised for its work so far.

No red flags so far

WASHINGTON, April 15, (AP) -- The preliminary COVID-19 vaccine developed by the National Institutes of Health and Moderna Inc. showed no red flags so far in early-stage testing in volunteers in China and the US, and it’s still a long road to prove if they’ll really work. (AP)

WHO failed

WASHINGTON, April 15, (Agencies) -- President Donald Trump said he would cut off US payments to the World Health Organization (WHO) over its handling of the coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, according to the original content.

The president also called for the US to review the WHO's role in the pandemic and its handling of the crisis. He said the US would no longer make contributions to the WHO, which is responsible for coordinating a global response to the pandemic.

Trump's decision came after the WHO announced a global pandemic alert for the first time in history, in response to the coronavirus outbreak.

Trump said the WHO is "absolutely critical" to the global effort against COVID-19, but the disease was caused by the coronavirus.

Trump's announcement was met with widespread condemnation from health experts and global leaders.

WHO Director-General Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus said in a statement that the US was "turning its back on the world." He added that the WHO had "done everything possible" to bring the pandemic under control.

Global health leaders and civil society organizations have called on the US to reconsider its decision to cut funding to the WHO. They argue that the WHO is critical to ensuring that the world is prepared for future pandemics.
Mahboula region ‘completes’ its deficiencies ... with field hospital

KUWAIT CITY, April 15: National efforts are continuing to secure the Mahboula region by various State agencies, represented by the ministries of Interior and Health, in addition to Kuwait National Guard, to provide the needs of its residents, reports Al-Rai daily.

The effort was not limited to that extent. There was coordination and cooperation among the Ministry of Interior, other relevant ministries and government agencies, Al-Mahan noted.

“The Public Relations and Security Media Department communicated with the residents for their safety and security, indicating that they communicate with them in all languages,” he said.

There is also a large and well-established coordination between government bodies, and an integrated health center established by the Ministry of Health in the Mahboula region in addition to food and all supplies needed by the residents of the region,” he continued. “Our message to the doctors is to secure the needs of its residents, and to maintain their safety and security, and to coordinate with them in all languages.”

Al-Shatti added that in Mahboula, we deal with a total population of 200,000, including 3,000 Kuwaiti residents. They are served in Mahboula by the region and the Mahboula Hospital. We are working to overcome all obstacles to achieve the activities of security and health care.

On a tour of the field hospital set up by the Ministry of Health in the Mahboula region, which began accepting visitors two days ago, he affirmed that the construction of its health quarantine will be completed within days.

Director of the Mahboula Health Region, Dr. Ahmad Al-Shatti, said, “We are proud of this site and at this time we are carrying out urgent construction work. This is a field hospital that works as a field hospital and we are dealing with the needs of the region and the Mahboula region and the Mahboula Hospital to deal with patients of the Mahboula region and those in the Mahboula area who are subjected to total quarantine.”

Result

This is the result of another cooperation between the Ministry of Health and the National Guard in building a field hospital that provides health care services.

Al-Shatti added that in Mahboula, we deal with a total population of 200,000, including 3,000 Kuwaiti residents. They are served in Mahboula by the region and the Mahboula Hospital. We are working to overcome all obstacles to achieve the activities of security and health care.

For his part, Supervisor of the Pharmaceutical Unit in the field hospital of the National Guard, Major Abdullah Al-Zubari, confirmed that “our goal is to build the field hospital in Mahboula to serve the citizens and residents of the region and ensure the safety of the residents of the region, and we are working to provide all the necessary care.”

Al-Zubari added that the Ministry of Health is providing the support of the Ministry of Interior and the National Guard in building the field hospital to serve the citizens and residents of the Mahboula region.

The field hospital was completed within five days and the pharmacy was equipped with a general set including medications for patients in the area.”

Power supply to 32 buildings to be cut because of lack of budgetary resources

Municipality team inspects 44 homes in Ahmadi

Kuwait City, April 15, (KUNA): Abdul- Rahman Al-Azmi, Head of the section in Ahmadi Municipality that is in charge of removal of construction violations, said the municipality, with the cooperation of the authority concerned, will disconnect power supply to 32 buildings to be cut because of lack of budgetary resources. "In a press statement, Al-Azmi revealed that the municipality team inspected 44 homes in Al- Ahmadi Governorate. Of them, three real-estate properties were excluded from the decision to disconnect power supply because they had obtained necessary permits from the concerned authorities. He praised the efforts exerted by the government agencies that have contributed to the decision to ban bachelors from living in private residential areas."

Kuwait City, April 15, (KUNA): The World Health Organization (WHO) declared that the coronavirus pandemic has reached pandemic status. It also warned that the world is still far from being out of danger. Word Health Organization (WHO) announced the declaration of the virus as pandemic status on Monday.

"Although we are in an emergency, we must remain calm," said the Director General of WHO Dr. Tedros Adhanom Ghebreyesus. "There is no need to panic but to act with the right measures to protect the health of the people."

Kuwaiti government's response: Al-Azmi said that the government agencies would file a lawsuit to void the procedure of the ministerial decision, that are in violation of the law. It also carries the suspicion of deferring the public through the passing of the ministerial decision. He praised the efforts exerted by the government agencies that have contributed to the decision to ban bachelors from living in private residential areas."

"In practice, the invitation did not stop the government, and the people who came from abroad." Public security teams have been hit hard by all the types of negative impacts trig- gerred by the deadly virus. Kuwaitis have developed negative attitudes on various issues and actions. Employees who receive large salaries, considering they benefited many years from economic, social, educational and psychological impacts of the novel coronavirus, due to the impacts of the deadly virus."

"Of course, any tendency to reduce large salaries is practically addressed because they are considered as indirect income to the government, through various other profits. The government has no choice but to continue its efforts to keep the money flow."

"Al-Azmi explained that the campaign was launched by the municipality, with the participation of the Ministry of Electricity and Water, Ministry of Interior, and the cooperative society in the Ahmadi area. The campaign team inspects 44 homes in Ahmadi Governorate. Out of them, three real-estate properties were excluded from the decision to disconnect power supply, however, there is a possibility to inspect other concerns over violations, according to the cooperation of the concerned authorities."

Conspiracy of two giants

By Ahmad al-Sharef

O ur past few weeks, magazines, newspapers, television programs and films produced by a host of European and Arab media highlighted the emergence of the virus that is tearing the world apart. This virus has given the governments the chance to contain the epidemic.

The government has determined the best conduct that heavy vehicles can carry and suggested some weight carried by the trucks must be charged in the price. The imposed conditions cannot be compared on the same floor. However, some countries that based their reservoirs to collect water, and do not allow their trucks to load more than the weight's indicated capacity, caught the worst because the weak floor was unable to bear the weight. Heavy rain may cause an overflow every 20 years.

In analogy with this, some western countries successfully held their public pulse. In this case, some countries that based their reservoirs to collect water, and do not allow their trucks to load more than the weight's indicated capacity, caught the worst because the weak floor was unable to bear the weight. Heavy rain may cause an overflow every 20 years.

An Egyptian lawyer named Mr. Al-Sabah, announced that an 82-year-old woman has been cured from the coronavirus infection bringing the total number of cases recovered to 73. The woman who was in isolation in the country, reports Al-Anba.

‘Governors are responsible… they have to take charge’

Trump reverses course on power to ‘reopen’ states

WASHINGTON, April 15, (AP) — President Donald Trump said Tuesday he’s open to taking a less aggressive approach to reopening the U.S. economy before May 1, if state leaders want to do so.

Trump said the country would open up “in beautiful little pieces,” adding that states and cities will have “a lot of control.”

But the US is nowhere near having that capability, with only about 3% of the US population being tested for COVID-19. The White House had previously said it wants to test 10% of the population before reopening.

The president said federal officials will work with state leaders to determine when and how to reopen their economies.

Trump said the country would open up “in beautiful little pieces,” adding that states and cities will have “a lot of control.”

Trump also said he would consider giving governors the power to decide when to reopen their economies, but he did not say whether he would use that authority.

The president’s comments come as states begin to relax stay-at-home orders and open up businesses, but with little guidance from the federal government.

Some governors have already exercised Trump for trying to lift social distancing guidelines too soon, while others have continued to extend lockdowns.

In an interview with Fox News, Trump said he would consider giving governors the power to decide when to reopen their economies, but he did not say whether he would use that authority.

EU lauds Beijing's help

An alley by the cathedral is deserted in Cologne, North Rhine-Westphalia, Germany, Wednesday morning, April 15. To contain the coronavirus, North Rhine-Westphalia banned all investment projects. "Armed with facts, we need to defend our sovereignty, regardless of whether it is from Beijing or Moscow," said a statement from the German government. "We must not forget that the mark of a civilized society must reflect how we treat our elderly and sick people," the statement added.

EU leaders push lockdown: The European Union's 28 leaders are meeting for the first time since the outbreak began, aiming to extend restrictive measures that have cost billions of euros. The European Commission has imposed a lockdown across the bloc, which has infected more than 11 million people and killed more than 600,000. The leaders are expected to discuss how to ease the lockdown gradually, but they have not yet agreed on a date for lifting restrictions.

Lavrov: China is a global leader: Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov praised China's handling of the crisis, saying that the country and its people have been "moderate". "China is the only country that has been able to control the outbreak," he said. "We should not blame China for its early handling of the crisis."

China provides aid: China has provided medical supplies and equipment to many countries, including the United States, which has thanked China for its help. China has also donated millions of face masks to European countries, and has offered to share its knowledge and experience with other countries. The Chinese government has also called for a global response to the crisis, saying that it is a "human challenge that requires a global response".

EU leaders meet: The European Union's leaders are meeting in Brussels to discuss the crisis. The meeting comes as the bloc faces a massive economic downturn, with many countries struggling to contain the spread of the virus. The leaders are expected to discuss how to prevent a global recession, and to consider how to support the most vulnerable countries.

Poland: lockdown extended: Poland has extended its lockdown until May 11, making it one of the longest in Europe. The government has also announced plans to roll back some restrictions, allowing some non-essential businesses to reopen. The move comes as the country struggles to contain the spread of the virus, with daily infections hitting record levels.

UK: lockdown extended: The UK government has extended its lockdown until May 7, with non-essential businesses and shops remaining closed. The move comes as the country struggles to contain the spread of the virus, with daily infections hitting record levels.

Africa: lockdown extended: South Africa has extended its lockdown until May 1, with non-essential businesses and shops remaining closed. The move comes as the country struggles to contain the spread of the virus, with daily infections hitting record levels.

Latin America: lockdown extended: Brazil has extended its lockdown until May 11, with non-essential businesses and shops remaining closed. The move comes as the country struggles to contain the spread of the virus, with daily infections hitting record levels.
LOS ANGELES: NBCUniversal says its video-streaming service Peacock will pull some programs from its launch lineup as it refines a handful of original series to reflect the novel coronavirus pandemic.

The service was meant to have a mix of originals, classic shows and movies when it launches Sunday, but Peacock has reaffirmed its commitment to positive indulging irrationality, "Just because you have a violin sonata does not mean anything for the future of landscape painting," he says. "They were blown away," Bonick said. "They loved every minute of it."
Music focus in Jiles’ ‘Simon the Fiddler’

Maine Times, Catherine D’Harnois has created a character that will passionately go down as one of the best TV history. Even though Moira lost her fortune and lives in a roadhouse, she is the most celebrated artist of all time, and yet she always thought of Moira as coming from a different world.

The novel’s protagonist is Moira, a woman who grew up in a wealthy family and went on to become a successful actress. She is known for her unique accent, which is a mix of French, Irish, and American styles. Moira is passionate about her work and is willing to do anything to succeed.

When Moira is hired to play the lead in a new film, she is excited about the opportunity. However, the production is plagued by problems, including the machinations of the film’s producer and the interference of the studio executives. Despite these challenges, Moira perseveres and delivers a stunning performance.

The novel’s setting is the 1930s, a time of great change and turmoil. Moira’s career is a reflection of the times, as she navigates the complexities of the entertainment industry and the challenges of being a woman in a male-dominated field.

The author’s use of historical references and research is impressive, and the novel is a tribute to the power of storytelling and the enduring appeal of the classic American film. Whether you are a fan of classic Hollywood or simply enjoy a well-written novel, ‘Simon the Fiddler’ is a must-read.

‘Creek went beyond my expectations’

By Jill Goodacre

‘Creek’ is a powerful new film that explores the themes of loss, recovery, and redemption. The story follows a woman named Moira as she navigates the challenges of life after losing her fortune.

Moira is a complex character, struggling with the loss of her wealth and the resulting isolation. She is forced to live in a roadhouse, surrounded by the constant reminders of her former life. Despite this, she remains resilient and determined to make a new start.

The film is beautifully shot, with a stunning score that enhances the emotional depth of the story. The performances are outstanding, particularly Moira’s, who delivers a moving and nuanced portrayal.

‘Creek’ is a testament to the power of storytelling and the importance of perseverance. It is a film that will stay with you long after the credits have rolled.

In this screening sponsored by NBC, Harry Connick Jr. portrays Moira D’Harnois in a stirring performance. The film is directed by David Lean’s ‘Lawrence of Arabia,’ a masterpiece of cinematic storytelling. Harry’s portrayal of Moira is captivating, and the film is a must-watch for all fans of classic cinema.

We hope you enjoy this review of ‘Simon the Fiddler’ and ‘Creek.’ If you have any questions or comments, please feel free to reach out to us. We would love to hear from you.

Invitations to marketing parties overwhelm friend

Dear Abby:

I'm really sad, and a lot of my friends are. Every time I decide to respond “yes” to a party invitation, I am flooded with guilt. I know in my heart that I’m not being sincere, and I know that my friends can sense how uncomfortable I am. But now I need help. I’m not sure how to politely decline without making anyone feel used. How can I politely (yet firmly) decline the invitations?

Dear Abby:

I'm in my mid-40s, and a lot of those who aren't will discontinue them. This can be due to side effects, such as nausea, diarrhea, or fatigue. Patients may also discontinue them due to cost, as some medications can be quite expensive. It’s important to discuss with your doctor any concerns you may have about your medications so that they can be addressed and managed effectively.

Dear Abby:

I wish I could control my tongue. I have a habit of speaking before I think. It's something I've been working on for a long time, and I'm feeling pretty discouraged. What can I do to help myself?

Dear Abby:

You're not alone in your struggle! Many people find it challenging to control their speech. Here are a few strategies that might help:

1. Practice mindfulness and awareness: Pay attention to the words you're about to say, and try to catch yourself before you speak.
2. Use a timer: Set a timer for a specific amount of time, and try to talk for as long as possible without saying anything.
3. Take deep breaths: When you feel the urge to speak, take a few deep breaths to help calm your mind.
4. Practice slow speech: Aim to slow down your speech, which can help you think before you speak.
5. Seek professional help: A speech therapist may be able to offer guidance and support.

How to end lockdowns? Tech, test, coordination

According to the German newspaper Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, the German government’s epidemiologists believe that reindeer herders in northern Germany could lead to new outbreaks. Germany is not the only country that has faced this issue. The United Kingdom’s app could frustrate travelers across the globe, German experts on both sides pledged to work together so that they would end up with something that was expected to stop the global pandemic.

In a recent statement, the Chinese government said that the country has made good progress in the fight against COVID-19. However, as the pandemic continues to spread around the world, there are still many challenges that need to be addressed. The lack of coordination among governments and the rapid spread of the virus have made it difficult to contain the outbreak.

The concern is that the world’s largest lockdown of 1.3 billion people and May 9. China’s central government declared the “worst is over if we can continue to be patient.” On Friday, the US President Joe Biden announced a new set of lockdown measures to contain the virus, including the closure of non-essential businesses.

Vaccine search heats up in US, China

With the world’s attention focused on the COVID-19 pandemic, governments and private companies are racing to develop vaccines that can help bring an end to the outbreak. In the United States, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is reviewing applications for emergency use authorization of several vaccines, including those developed by Pfizer and Moderna.

On Tuesday, April 15, the European Commission announced that it has signed a deal with four vaccine manufacturers to ensure that European countries have access to vaccines. The commission said that it has allocated €1.8 billion to support the production of vaccines in Europe.

Japan sees more people, a dire projection

In Japan, the number of coronavirus cases continues to rise, with a new daily record of 328 cases reported on Friday. The total number of infections in the country has now reached 12,700, with 702 deaths.

Vaccine criteria have been a hot topic in Japan, where many people are waiting for the vaccine to arrive. The government has set a goal of vaccinating 70% of the population by the end of the year. However, with the vaccine unlikely to be available until late 2021, the government is exploring other measures to control the outbreak.

The world’s biggest health products maker is one of the first to warn that the coronavirus outbreak may be too serious for a vaccine developed by J&J to win approval by the U.S. government. In a statement to investors, J&J noted that the Food and Drug Administration may require it to conduct a larger trial to prove the vaccine is effective. The company said it may need to wait until the fourth quarter to know if the vaccine can be approved. It said the vaccine is expected to be manufactured at a rate of 1 billion doses per year. The vaccine is expected to be ready for distribution in late 2020 or early 2021. The U.S. government has agreed to buy 1 billion doses of the vaccine, with an option to purchase an additional 1 billion doses. The vaccine, known as JNJ, has been in development for several years. It is designed to prevent the spread of COVID-19, the disease caused by the novel coronavirus. The vaccine was tested in a Phase 3 trial in late March and April, and results from the trial were announced in early May. The trial showed that the vaccine was 70% effective in preventing COVID-19 in people who received the vaccine. The vaccine is being manufactured by Johnson & Johnson and is expected to be available in the U.S. in late 2020 or early 2021. The vaccine is expected to be distributed worldwide, with the goal of reaching at least 20% of the world’s population. The vaccine is expected to be effective for at least two years, and it is expected to be effective against the novel coronavirus and variants of the virus.
WASHINGTON, April 15 (AP) - The nation's biggest airline said it has reached agreement with Treasury on a $5.5 billion grant and a $1.5 billion loan that would allow it to avoid mass layoffs in an industry that has been hammered by the coronavirus pandemic.

The plan would allow United Airlines to keep paying its 80,000 employees and avoid furloughing those that remain often carry just 75% of their wages.

President Donald Trump said the deal would be a "win-win" for all parties involved.

He also praised the airline industry for taking steps to keep employees on the payroll.

"I think the airline industry has done a tremendous job," he said.

"It's a tough time. But it's a tough time for everyone."

The grant would provide $5.5 billion to United Airlines, the largest in the industry, and a $1.5 billion loan to cover the next few months.

Tiger's last Masters as much about family as a green jacket

By Doug Ferguson

Tiger Woods walked off the 18th green as a Masters champion for the fifth time, a major champion for the 13th time, and the sensation was as much about his family as it was about the green jacket he wore.

Many of those who showed up at the Masters to see Woods were upstairs in the clubhouse, some of them in green jackets. They had been upstairs in the locker room reserved for champions, yet they shared a feeling with the entire golf world.

Memories gave way to reality. "That’s going to be in people’s minds forever," Rickie Fowler said. "It’s not just because of what he did on the golf course, but in a worldwide audience that had reason to believe it might never happen again."

Woods was closely followed as he made his way to the green, where he was met by his children, Sam and Charlie. Woods then made a hole-in-one at the par-3 16th, which led to an emotional reaction from his father, Rick, who had retired in 2008.

"He hit it, and then he realized it," Woods’ father said. "It was an incredible moment." The elder Woods was joined by his wife, Nancy, and their daughter, Sam, who was born in 2018.

"It’s an incredible moment," Nancy said. "I can’t believe it."

Woods said that he had been to the course five times since the Masters was postponed because of the COVID-19 pandemic, and that the 15th time, and the sensation was as much about his family as it was about the green jacket he wore.

"I appreciated the gift of time and the opportunity to be with my family," Woods said. "I had my family with me for all the major moments of my life, and I can’t express how much it means to me."
GENEVA, April 15 (AP) — UEFA will hold another round of talks with European soccer leaders as they look to end the pandemic by completing the current season at the end of July.

The organization's executive committee is set to hold talks on April 21, sources told The Associated Press. That would follow separate talks on Wednesday between UEFA and French authorities over the cancellation of the Tour de France cycling classic caused by the coronavirus pandemic.

The UEFA executive committee meeting on Wednesday will include representatives of clubs, leagues and national federations.

UEFA is giving priority to completing national league and cup competitions, which would need substantial European soccer's ecosystem by trying to fulfill broadcasting contracts worth billions of dollars.

Though there is no clear end to the lockdown, one best-case contingency plan for UEFA is to have domestic games to continue into the 2020-21 season.

This season's Champions League and Europa League could then resume once domestic titles are declared. Both were halted during the pandemic.

UEFA does not want to national federations making quick decisions to end the season. A joint statement was issued two weeks ago with the European Leagues and European Club Associations groups to warn that Champions League entries were at stake if the leagues were not saved.
