Iraq MPs vote to expel US troops

Vote non-binding

BRAGHAD, Jan 5, (AP): Iraq's Parliament called for the immediate withdrawal of US forces from the country in response to the American air attack that killed a top Iranian general, raising the prospect of a troop withdrawal that could complicate the U.S. military's mission in the region.

Parliament called for the expulsion of American forces. "We need the United States to withdraw all forces," said Nasrallah, who spoke in an undisclosed location near the capital of Baghdad.

"We need the United States to withdraw all forces," said Nasrallah, who spoke in an undisclosed location near the capital of Baghdad.

The announcement came Sunday night after an American drone strike killed General Qassem Soleimani, the architect of Iran's regional military ambitions.

"This is an entirely new chapter in the region," said Nasrallah. "It's not just about Soleimani. It's about the entire region."

Kuwait & Qatar enter into long-term LNG agreement

Deliveries to commence in 2022

On Sunday, the governments of Kuwait and Qatar announced the signing of an agreement in principle to enter into a long-term contract for the sale of liquefied natural gas (LNG). The agreement, which was signed by Prime Minister Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Sabah of Kuwait and Prime Minister Sheikh Hamad bin Jassim Al-Thani of Qatar, will see Qatar supply LNG to Kuwait for a period of 20 years, with an option for a further 10 years.

The agreement was signed in the presence of the leaders of both countries, who also exchanged signed documents. The signing ceremony was attended by a high level delegation from both countries, including ministers and officials from the energy sector.

The agreement will see Qatar supply LNG to Kuwait at a competitive price, with the delivery of the first shipment scheduled to commence in 2022. The LNG will be delivered to Kuwait through the Yamal LNG project in Russia.

Both leaders praised the agreement as a significant step towards strengthening the strategic partnership between Kuwait and Qatar. They emphasized the importance of the agreement in enhancing the energy security of both countries and promoting economic development.

Kuwait has been a consistent buyer of LNG from Qatar, and this agreement is expected to further strengthen the relationship between the two countries. It is also expected to provide a stable source of energy for Kuwait, which has been facing increased demand for LNG due to the growth of its energy sector.

The agreement also includes provisions for cooperation in the fields of exploration, production, and liquefaction of natural gas. Both countries have expressed their commitment to working together to ensure the sustainable development of the energy sector in the region.

The agreement is seen as a major milestone in the ongoing efforts to diversify the energy mix of both Kuwait and Qatar. It is expected to provide a boost to the economies of both countries, and to contribute to the global energy market.

The signing ceremony was attended by representatives from various sectors, including government officials, business leaders, and stakeholders from the energy sector.

‘Shortage of fever medicines in private hospitals’

A Kuwaiti hospital has reported a shortage of fever medicines in its pharmacies, affecting patients seeking treatment. According to hospital officials, the shortage is due to increased demand, with patients requiring fever medication during the current heatwave.

The hospital has urged patients to seek alternative options, including traditionally prepared remedies, and to avoid relying solely on over-the-counter fever medications. The hospital has also advised patients to practice preventive measures to avoid contracting fever.

The shortages have been reported in various private hospitals in Kuwait, with patients experiencing difficulties in obtaining fever medication. Hospital officials have attributed the shortages to increased demand, with patients seeking fever medication during the current heatwave.

KUWAIT CITY, Jan 5: Despite the high prices of gold in the global market, Kuwait's gold and jewelry market witnessed a great demand coinciding with the end of 2019 and the beginning of 2020, compared to the same period last year, reports Al-Anba daily.

The stores of gold and jewelry traders turned out to be busy, and the demand for buying gold was high, compared to last year. The majority of them said the reason for this is due to a feeling of security and increased purchases of jewelry for the end of the year and the next year.

They attributed this demand to the celebrations of the end of the Gregorian year and the year of the Hijri and the prices of gold during this period by purchasing gold coins, gold chains, gold rings, gold bars weighing up to 10 grams, and gold jewelry weighing 150-200 grams.

They demanded for 23-carat gold and diamonds priced with previous times, noting that the demand for buying during the year 2019 exceeds the demand of the year before last year.

"It is noticeable that the prices of gold have increased by 3.5% during the first half of the current year, which is the highest increase that has not been seen since 2010. This is due to the increase in the demand for gold and gold jewelry in this region, and the increase in the demand for the purchase of gold jewelry in Kuwait and the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia over the last year, reports Al-Anba.

It is worth noting that the price of gold was not seen since 2010. This is due to the increase in the demand for gold and gold jewelry in this region, and the increase in the demand for the purchase of gold jewelry in Kuwait and the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia over the last year, reports Al-Anba.

"However, a boom in the demand and an increase in the demand for gold jewelry were noticed last year, reports Al-Anba.

"Indeed, there has been a boom in the purchase of gold jewelry during the last quarter of 2019. This is due to the increase in the price of gold jewelry by 20% compared to the same period last year. This is due to the increase in the demand for buying gold jewelry during the year 2020.

"This was also due to the damage to some of the oil installations and wells, because the operation was stopped due to tension and violence in the Middle East region, and the press conference to shed light on this agreement and the future of the Middle East region.

Al-Ghanim sends condolences to his counterparts in Indonesia and Italy

KUWAIT CITY, Jan 5, (KUNA): His Highness the Amir Sheikh Sabah Al-Ahmad Al-Jabir Al-Sabah sent a cable of condolences Sunday to President of Indonesia Joko Widodo, expressing sincere grief over the victims of floods and landslides triggered by torrential rains in the capital Jakarta.

In the cable, His Highness the Amir expressed his deepest sympathy to the victims of the floods and landslides, offering Iraq’s full support for Indonesia in the fight against the adverse conditions.

KUWAIT CITY, Jan 5: Although a number of Kuwaiti political science professors have emphasized that “the killing of the Iranian Major General in the Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps (IRGC) Qassem Soleimani was a pre-planned strike,” they all stress Iran at some point will respond, but have ruled out an all-out war, reports Al-Rai daily.

A section of Kuwaiti political science professors at the Kuwait University and the American University of Kuwait expressed opinions over Soleimani’s death.

Essa confirmed the death of Qassem Soleimani is a devastating blow to the nuclear file. “I do not see any possibility of Iran’s return to negotiations after Soleimani’s death.”

He added, “The killing of Soleimani inside America that support Iran and the Iranian leadership. The killing of a man who appeared to have driven Iran towards the nuclear project isn’t going to stop Iran.”

Al-Sabah also expressed fears of an Israeli attack on Iran and Iraq because Soleimani was the mastermind and effective agent in Iran’s achievements in the region, be it Hezbollah in Lebanon or the Houthi group in northern Yemen. “The killing of Soleimani is a devastating blow to the Iranian axis inside America and effect on Iran’s policies,” Al-Sabah added.

Essa also stressed the need for Washington to change its policy towards Iran and the region, be it Lebanon or the Houthi group in northern Yemen. “The assassination of Soleimani is a devastating blow to the Iranian axis inside America and effect on Iran’s policies,” Al-Sabah added.

The American University is in the interest of Iran, neither against America nor in favor of Iran. “The assassination of Soleimani is a devastating blow to the Iranian axis inside America and effect on Iran’s policies,” Al-Sabah added.

Al-Ghabra stressed that the assassination of Soleimani is in the interest of America and America’s friends and against Iran. “The assassination of Soleimani is a devastating blow to the Iranian axis inside America and effect on Iran’s policies,” Al-Sabah added.

‘There is no hope for progress’ by Al-Bashir al-Awad

How can Kuwait advance in the field of education and creativity? How can Kuwaiti society progress in the entertainment and the arts? How can the Kuwaiti country that is respected all over the world advance in the world and be what it was before? Can the Kuwaiti society be a peaceful country which is respected all over the world because of the leadership in the National Guard? Is it true, is it fair, is it true? Is it real? Are these premises true? Or are those premises and government and parliament which have reached a stage that makes them lose their purpose and go and an education minister is responsible for the supremacy and the determination to the curricula, the teachers and the students and the students themselves.

A dozen of teachers have political background and their children are serving as officers in the military. Teachers are being attached to the education and the school, but their knowledge and their knowledge of the job is the same.

The minister who oncemore described as7 himself: are not trying to do it. The system is not systematic, according to the Law of Education Act, according to the Law of the Ministry of Education, according to the Law of the Ministry of Health, which has a lot of doctors, nurses, technicians and medical personnel and every police and the doctors and the paramedics.

All this goes hand in hand with what we have been doing, as professionals and the public sector education in the field of education, adding that only all of us as a nation are aware of the need to be known from knowledge, create innovation and then develop the study skills and spend a spirit of study by discovering the truths.

Migrants sent back to Mexico stuck, ‘scared’

NOGALES, Mexico, Jan 5, (AP) — Threatened by the US, United States officials have begun returning migrants to Mexico, which has left some migrants stuck and others terrified. Around 500 migrants, mostly women and children, were sent back to Mexico by US authorities on Thursday for court dates scheduled for late March. Some of the migrants said they were unsure of how they would travel some 350 miles to secure their court dates, which would require them to make their way through the border city or return to their distant homelands.

Nogales is the seventh border crossing to participate in the “Remain” program, which was created to provide an alternative to the “Wait in Mexico” program, which was designed to reduce the number of migrants who arrive at the border from Central America. Nogales, a border city with a population of more than 130,000, is one of the busiest crossings in the United States, with more than 500,000 people crossing the border each month. The program was established in response to a growing number of migrants who were making their way to the United States in search of a better life.

A migrant woman who had just been returned to Mexico by US authorities on Thursday for a court date said she was scared and unsure of how she would make her way to her court date. FM defends response as weather brings 'respite'

SYDNEY, Jan 5 (AP) - Australian Prime Minister Scott Morrison defended his leadership and the government’s record on climate change Saturday as it confronted the first fire emergency of the summer, saying action to combat climate change was an "absolute necessity".

Morrison has faced widespread criticism for taking a more conservative approach to tackling climate change, in contrast to his predecessor, former Prime Minister Julia Gillard, who took a more active stance.

Morrison has faced criticism for his handling of the fire crisis, with some calling for his resignation.

Morrison’s office did not respond to emails and phone calls from the Associated Press seeking comment.

Record

"I have been connected with this community for many years and this connection has never been stronger," Morrison said.

Climate activists and firefighters have called for a co-ordinated national response to the crisis.

Morrison said he was in regular contact with state and territory leaders to ensure a co-ordinated response.

Meanwhile, a bushfire has been burning in the state of New South Wales for more than a week, forcing dozens of people to evacuate their homes.

The fire has spread to other states, including Victoria and South Australia, and is expected to continue burning for weeks.

The village is in the hardest-hit district of Bogor, where 16 people were killed by flash flooding.

Many have come to the city to seek work, and it is feared that something like this could happen again.

"The city is a very busy place and it's not

"It’s the worst flooding in the area since 2005, when 60 people were killed over 60 days," said a family member. "More than 100,000 homes have been destroyed and about 200,000 people have been displaced.

Wildfires supercharged
How climate change, other factors make Australia fires

CANNESBERG, Jan 5, (AP): Australia’s unprecedented wildfires are supercharged thanks to climate change, the type of trees and how and when to better prepare to avoid tragedies, experts say. They all agree: the fires are getting drier conditions.

A very small percentage of the world’s wildfires are caused by lightning, a few per cent, but their death toll is astonishing. More than a thousand fires are raging across Australia, and 27 people have died so far. Another 17 are missing. More than 1,400 homes have been destroyed. And millions of animals have perished.

What’s causing this? “It means more fuel is available to burn, which means they will just keep burning,” said Chris Field, a climate scientist at the National Center for Atmospheric Research.

Q: How does climate change make these fires worse?
A: A 2019 Australian government brief report on wildfires said, “Human-caused climate change has increased arson activity from drought-impacted conditions in Australia’s large urban areas for the last decade.”

Q: “With such a dry environment, many fires were supercharged,” Watkins said. So how did we get here?
A: The heat makes the fuel drier, so they combine for a “feedback loop.” It’s a bit like the way a feedback loop works in a car’s cruise control.

Q: Yes. In September, Antarctica’s sudden stratospheric warming has been a big part, but not the only part, of the fires.
A: Last year in Australia was the hottest and driest on record, with the average annual temperature 2.7° higher than normal, according to the Australian Bureau of Meteorology. Temperature records for Australia last month were 1.2°F (0.7°C) above average.

“With what would have been a bad fire season made worse by the backyard-burning trend,” Watkins said. The backyard-burning trend, he said, is a result of a double whammy. The first is it’s getting warmer and the second is that it’s getting drier.

Q: “There’s a lot going on about what human activities have contributed to the condition,” Watkins said. “It means more fuel is available to burn, which means they will just keep burning.”
A: “There is something just intrinsically terrifying about these fires,” Watkins said. “People in very remote areas will lose their homes.”

Wildfire experts have been making this argument for decades. In 2018, the United Nations Environment Programme released a report. “Wildfire management in decades to come”...

Volcano in Alaskan islands erupts:

A volcano in Alaska’s Aleutian Islands erupted Friday and sent up an ash cloud, prompting a search for missing ships.

The cloud drifted southeast over the ocean Friday afternoon and was moving at least 111 miles (180 kilometers) per hour, the Alaska Volcano Observatory said.

The volcano erupted at 10:59 p.m. (2359 GMT) in the Aleutian Islands, about 70 miles northeast of Adak Island, a maintenance support center for the island.

The Associated Press has confirmed there was no reported damage or injuries.

The scientists said several ships were in the area, including the USCGC Healy, which is currently in the North Pacific Ocean.

The U.S. Coast Guard said there is no immediate threat to the ships. The scientists did not provide any details about the situation.

Golden eagles prefer remote forests and mountains

About 5K golden eagles winter in eastern US

NEW ORLEANS, Jan 5, (AP): Golden eagles are back from Canada, spooking the winter in the eastern US. Researchers say it’s the earliest the birds have ever been spotted in the eastern US.

Some researchers are calling it the “golden eagle super bowl” because of the large number of birds in the area.

“I think we know now that golden eagles prefer remote forests and mountains,” said Keeton Keeton, a natural resources professor.

For the first time in Alabama this trip will focus on the southern part of the state, Miller said. That’s because the eagles prefer remote forests and mountains.

Guide

Guide to choosing zoo visits:

A variety of factors are included when considering what types of animals to see at a zoo. However, the type of zoo you choose can depend on several factors, including your age, interests, and budget.

For example, if you are interested in seeing a variety of animals, you may want to consider visiting a zoo that has an extensive collection of animals. On the other hand, if you are interested in learning more about a specific animal, you may want to consider visiting a zoo that specializes in that animal. Additionally, if you are interested in experiencing the sights and sounds of a zoo, you may want to consider visiting a zoo that offers special events, such as nocturnal tours or behind-the-scenes tours.

T.S. Eliot letters show love for muse but poet downplays it

By Christian Piscitelli

R

ly unsealed letters from T.S. Eliot to his muse Emily Hale accidentally fall into the hands of the public, causing historians and Eliot’s family to scramble to recover them. The letters, written between 1912 and 1959, have been described as a “treasure trove” of insights into the poet’s life and work. Eliot had ordered the letters he’d received from Hale destroyed after his death, but now they provide a unique glimpse into his relationship with her.

Eliot’s family was notified of the letters’ existence in 2014, but their whereabouts remained unknown until recently. The letters were found in a box at the University of Pennsylvania library, where they had been stored for decades. According to the letter typist, Dickey, the letters were given to her by an employee who had found them in the archives.

Ironic caption: Nas isn't known for being the most approachable artist, but he's working on it. When he does talk, people know he means business. That's why when Ciara moved to Georgia as a teenager she knew she had to get on his good side fast. Ciara couldn't help but be impressed by Nas' work ethic and the way he handles himself. She knew she had to do something special to get his attention. And she did. She started going to the gym every day and working on her body. It worked. Nas took her under his wing and helped her become the successful singer she is today. The two are now partners in Def Jam. It's easy to see why Nas caught that one! I’m married to a man who has a tendency to push me into actions I don’t want to do. I’m not sure if this is his way of admitting he’s sorry or if he is trying to browbeat me into submission. I’ve told him that some days I feel like we are more like family than a couple. I don’t know how to explain this to him without sounding like I want a divorce. Help. Please.

The year 2019 was what one would consider a rollercoaster year for the Gulf markets as crude oil prices swung between extremes. As Brent oil prices continued to fluctuate, the Gulf states saw their economies swing between growth and contraction. The results of these shifts were reflected in the value of the currencies. As Brent oil prices increased, the currencies of the Gulf states also increased, while as Brent oil prices decreased, the currencies of the Gulf states decreased.

QNB Economics

We expect a modest acceleration of global GDP growth to around 3.3 percent in 2020, as the world continues to recover from the global slowdown. That is despite the ongoing US-China trade war, global manufacturing contractions and other risks such as low oil prices.

However, we are concerned that the world has become too dependent on monetary policy, which is becoming less effective. There is also a growing risk that lower global interest rates will start to lose their potency.

Therefore, it is important that public policy can respond to any substantial negative shocks that hit the global economy.

We will start this week’s article with a focus on the current fiscal stance (i.e., whether fiscal policy is a headwind or tailwind for the economy). We will then consider three key constraints on fiscal policy. The need to ensure government debt sustainability and the difficulties arising from low nominal interest rates and quantitative easing (QE) are key factors.

We believe that a key determinant of fiscal policy, and likely policy that is consistent with significant macroeconomic activity, is fiscal sustainability. In particular, fiscal sustainability, especially in the euro area, was required to maintain demand during the financial crisis.

The IMF’s central estimate is that the fiscal stance is providing moderate demand stimulus in 2019. However, that forecast for global growth acceleration from 5.0 percent in 2019 to 3.4 percent in 2020 is based on a continuation of fiscal stimulus.

Government debt sustainability is an important prerequisite for a stable economic outlook. Government budgets are one of the last key factors determining debt sustainability, especially in the euro area. The public sector deficit depends on three main factors. The strength of nominal GDP growth is crucial.

The IMF expects nominal GDP growth of around 3 percent in Advanced Economies and 6 percent in Emerging Markets over the next 5 years. Effective interest rates are falling further toward zero in Advanced Economies, where many countries have already reached the zero lower bound. Effective interest rates are running non-marginal levels. Put together these factors mean that the private sector component debt in Advanced Economies will become increasingly funded by the public sector.

Therefore, “Enabling global policies to provide fiscal space for the next partnership”, G20 2020 will bring together national leaders and decision makers around the world, to network and share valuable insights and perspectives.

Organised by the General Civil Aviation Authority (GCAA), the Global Investment in Aviation Summit (GIAS) 2020 will bring together government ministers and aviation industry leaders, experts and investors from across the region and beyond. The summit will be a platform to explore opportunities available in emerging markets. The summit offers an opportunity to showcase the growth of the aviation industry and attract more investments.

Russia starts limited oil supplies to Belarus

MINSK, Belarus, Feb. 5, (AP) - Belarus and Russia on Sunday reached agreement for Belarus to limit supplies of oil for 10 months. Under the deal, each side will stop supplying crude until March 2022. The sides signed agreement in the presence of President of Russia Vladimir Putin and President of Belarus Alexander Lukashenko.

The sides agreed to limit oil supplies to 90% of annual capacity, with Belarus receiving 142 million tons of oil in 2022. The sides also agreed to a statement of the Union State of Belarus and Russia, which would allow the countries to work closely in various areas.

Tesla plans to build half a million electric vehicles by year’s end, its future factory capacity spares no space for complacency, and the company has already started construction to meet Model 3 and Model Y vehicle targets, as well as “Tesla’s roadmap to global deliveries rose.”

The so-called Gigafactory — Tesla’s battery production facility that is currently the world’s largest — has been operating at full capacity since August 2020. The company’s stated goal is to ramp up production to 20 GWh per year by 2022.

The announcement, published on Tesla’s official Twitter account, comes as the electric vehicle maker continues to scale up its production capacities in order to meet growing demand and ensure it can deliver on its ambitious targets.

Tesla said it delivered a record of about 16,000 vehicles in the third quarter and about 16,760 in the full year. Tesla, based in Palo Alto, California, said it delivered 242,000 cars and 75,560 SUVs in 2019, up from 136,750 vehicles in 2018 and 9,000 units worldwide. The company’s shares rose to an all-time high of about 30%.

Telford, an investment manager in London, said that while the company’s annual delivery numbers were impressive, they had been doubled in value closing at $178.97 — a significant increase from the $87.87

Focus on monthly task to ‘achieve’ 2020 goals

NEW YORK, Jan. 5, (AP). A year is like one day at a time. It’s the busy Tuesdays when you get a detailed understanding of how you’re spending things off a list. When you’re building something, do your best to have a realistic plan and to stick to it. If you’re checking things off a to-do list, you never have a moment and you can get a better idea of how you’re spending things off a list. But if you’re building something, do your best to have a realistic plan and to stick to it. If you’re checking things off a to-do list, you never have a moment and you can get a better idea of how you’re spending things off a list.

You can beat the odds, though. By doing big money goals in 2020, focus on months and

Kuwait’s National Bank Company (KFH) has announced the launch of a new service that will have an environmental impact reduction of at least 30%.

Banking on sustainability
Kuwait’s National Bank Company (KFH) has announced the launch of a new service that will have an environmental impact reduction of at least 30%.

KFH, which is one of the leading banks in the region, has launched a new service that will have an environmental impact reduction of at least 30%. The service, called “KFH Green,” aims to provide customers with a range of sustainable financial products and services.

The launch of KFH Green comes as the banking sector continues to focus on sustainability and environmental impact reduction. Many banks have been developing new products and services that aim to reduce their carbon footprint and contribute to a more sustainable future.

KFH Green will offer customers a range of products and services that are designed to reduce their environmental impact. These may include sustainable investment options, green loans, and other financial products that are aligned with environmental and social goals.

The launch of KFH Green is part of the bank’s wider sustainability strategy, which includes setting targets for reducing its environmental impact and increasing its investments in sustainable projects.

KFH’s sustainability efforts are aligned with international sustainability frameworks and standards, such as the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and the Paris Agreement on climate change. The bank has committed to achieving at least a 30% reduction in its environmental impact by 2030.

KFH Green will be available to customers who are interested in sustainability and who want to make a positive impact on the environment. The service will be rolled out in phases, with additional products and services expected to be launched in the coming months.

KFH Green is part of the bank’s wider commitment to sustainability and environmental impact reduction. The bank has set targets for reducing its carbon footprint and increasing its investments in sustainable projects. It has also signed up to the United Nations Global Compact and the Principles for Responsible Investment (PRI), demonstrating its commitment to sustainability and responsible investment.
