KUWAIT CITY, July 14, 2021: The Prime Minister has asked the Ministry of Health to accelerate the implementation of the National Immunization Program amid fears of the discovery of new strains of the virus. The Prime Minister made the statement during his meeting with the minister, which was attended by representatives from the health sector. The Prime Minister stressed the need for the ministry to ensure the smooth implementation of the program, which has become a cornerstone in the fight against the virus.

The Prime Minister also highlighted the importance of keeping up the momentum in the fight against the virus. He noted that the number of cases has been on the decline in recent weeks, but warned that the country must remain vigilant and continue to implement the necessary measures to prevent a rebound of the virus. The Prime Minister also thanked the health workers for their efforts in battling the pandemic and called on the public to continue to follow the health guidelines to prevent the spread of the virus.

In another development, Education Affairs Minister Dr. Sabah Al-Khaled Al-Habib has announced that the ministry will resume the exams for students who missed them due to the pandemic. The exams will be held in August and will cover all academic levels. The minister emphasized the importance of the exams in assessing students' progress and ensuring that they are well-prepared for their future studies.

The minister also called on the students to prepare well for the exams and to follow the necessary health protocols. He noted that the ministry has put in place strict measures to ensure the safety of the students and the examiners.

The Education Affairs Minister also mentioned that the ministry will continue to monitor the situation closely and to take any necessary measures to ensure the smooth implementation of the exams.

Ahmed Al-Aswad, the advisor to the Minister of Health, also participated in the meeting. He underscored the importance of continued efforts to combat the pandemic and called on the public to continue to follow the health guidelines.

KUWAIT CITY, July 14: Personnel from the Kuwait National Cancer Institute (KNCI) have made a significant breakthrough in the treatment of breast cancer, a study has shown.

The study, which was conducted by Dr. Hani Al-Aqeel, in implementing Kuwait’s national plan to fight the cancer, found that the treatment could significantly reduce the risk of recurrence in breast cancer patients.

According to the study, the treatment could reduce the risk of recurrence by 50% for patients with early-stage breast cancer, and by 70% for patients with advanced-stage breast cancer.

The study also found that the treatment could improve the quality of life for breast cancer patients, decreasing the risk of fatigue, pain, and other side effects of the disease.

The results of the study have been published in a reputable international journal, and are expected to be widely adopted by cancer treatment centers around the world.

China accuses US of sowing discord

BEIJING, July 14 (AP) - China on Tuesday described a US plan to impose new economic sanctions on China as a "reckless" move that will only escalate tensions between the world’s two biggest economies.

"The US needs to adopt a moderate and rational stance and take action to reduce confrontation and maintain overall stability between China and the US," said China’s foreign ministry spokesman, Zhao Lijian.

China has been increasingly assertive in recent months, especially in the South China Sea, where it has continued to assert its sovereignty over its claimed territories.

Washington has repeatedly criticized Beijing’s actions, saying they are destabilizing and unhelpful. But China has refused to back down, saying it is defending its territorial sovereignty.

The US has also imposed sanctions on Chinese officials and companies it accuses of human rights abuses and interference in its domestic politics.

But the US and China’s continuing trade tensions are far from the only issues at play. The two countries are also at odds over the South China Sea, where China has been expanding its claims, and over trade, technology, and human rights issues.

China has been increasing its military presence in the region, and the US has been boosting its own forces to counter China’s move.

The US has also been imposing new tariffs on Chinese imports, sparking a trade war that has raised concerns about global economic stability.

The US and China are also at odds over the coronavirus pandemic, with China accusing the US of using the virus as a political tool and the US accusing China of covering up the extent of the outbreak.

Google announces $10 bln ‘digitization’ fund for India

NEW DELHI, July 14, (AP) - US tech giant Google is investing up to $10 billion to help accelerate India’s transition to a digital economy in the next five to seven years.

Sundar Pichai, CEO of Alphabet Inc.’s Google, said Monday that the project will focus on building products that are relevant to India’s needs and empowering businesses for their “digital transformation.”

“Our goal is to help India not only benefit from the advances in the world of innovation, but lead,” said Pichai in a digital keynote at an India event.

The company also announced it will invest $1 billion to support digital education in India. It said the fund will enable 1 million teachers in 22,000 schools across the country to use Google’s services for online learning.

Prime Minister Narendra Modi has made digitization a major priority for India.

He revises a “Digital India,” where high-speed Internet access will empower entrepreneurs to build software and other technology products to help raise the standard of living in a country where many households are still impoverished.

Modi styles himself as a leader of change, promising to turn India into a digital superpower, but his campaign has been critiqued for focusing mainly on rural areas. "I hear people are worried about the minimum wage and minimum income," he said.

Google’s $10 billion, which the company said will support initiatives such as $64.9 billion in January-June profits, rose 13.1% in the first six months of the year.

The profit growth was driven by a surge in online ad sales, as consumers and businesses turned to the internet during the pandemic.

Spending on programs to combat the coronavirus recession exploded while millions of job losses cut into tax revenues.

The federal government incurred the biggest monthly budget deficit in history in June as spending on relief programs such as Enhanced Unemployment Benefit (Extended) and the Paycheck Protection Program that provided support to hard-pressed workers hit start-up costs of $1 trillion. That reflected the 31.2% growth in the June deficit from $385 billion in May.

That amount was also the largest of all monthly deficits in the nation’s history and is above the previous monthly record of $778 billion in April. That amount was also the largest of all monthly deficits in the nation’s history and is above the previous monthly record of $778 billion in April.

The report showed that the cost of the pandemic to delay tax payments this year until September was $1.5 trillion.

The payment delay was a huge tax cut, allowing business and many workers facing the economic strain to delay tax payments this year until September 15.

So far, Britain has been spared the sharp rises in unemployment seen in the US. For example, because of the Job Retention Scheme, which the government has been paying the majority of the salaries of workers who have not been laid off, Britain has managed to avoid a surge in job losses.

Some 1.2 million employers have taken advantage of the program, and many workers would lose their jobs if the scheme were not extended. The government has confirmed it will begin to wind down the program at the end of October and make more cuts in November and December.

WASHINGTON, July 14, (AP) - The federal government incurred the biggest monthly budget deficit in history in June as spending on programs to combat the coronavirus recession exploded while millions of job losses cut into tax revenues.

The Treasury Department reported Monday that the deficit hit $694 billion last month, much of the amount of aid and stimulus payments that were recorded in the previous monthly record of $778 billion in April. That amount was also the largest of all monthly deficits in the nation’s history and is above the previous monthly record of $778 billion in April.

According to the FDI Confidence Index, developed by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and Oxford Economics, the UAE has maintained its rank among the top 10 FDI destinations in the world. The index is based on investor confidence, economic conditions, and the business environment. The UAE's strong commitment to investment protection and its stable economic environment have contributed to its attractiveness for foreign direct investment (FDI). The government's efforts to diversify the economy, attract high-tech firms, and develop sectors such as healthcare and education have also played a significant role in enhancing the UAE's FDI attractiveness. The index reflects the sentiment of business leaders and investors about the global economy and the attractiveness of different countries for FDI. A higher rank in the FDI Confidence Index indicates a more favorable environment for FDI. The UAE's ranking suggests that it is well-positioned to attract FDI and further strengthen its position as a major center for FDI in the region and beyond.

Global plan may allow ‘rich’ to buy more

London, July 14 (AP).— Politicians and public health leaders have publicly committed to distributing any coronavirus vaccines that emerge freely. But a new plan is raising concerns that the global initiative will be undermined by the ability of rich countries to purchase vaccines on their own, while many poorer countries struggle to get doses.

“Making sure that the right medicines are accessible to the right people is crucial. To do that, we need to rely on the global supply chain,” saidGenerate HEALTH hopes to secure 2 billion doses for people in lower-income countries to get vaccine deliveries in the fall.

said governments should “remove all obstacles” to equal access to vaccines. But he acknowledged there was no enforcement mechanism.

“By giving rich countries an all-you-can-eat plan, they’re getting their cake and eating it too,” said Anna Marriott of Doctors Without Borders. “Rich countries would do well to take note of what rich people can do in the area of the world. The only thing that’s free in this world is public health and that should be the way to do it.”

Dr Richard Hatchett, CEO of the Coalition for Epidemic Preparedness Innovations, said governments could use the new system to sign up in addition to nearly 90 developing countries that already have agreements with pharmaceutical companies.

While no country can afford to buy its own vaccine, governments should consider “where they can do well,” he said, noting that the global supply chain had been “underfunded.”

“We have to find a solution because some of these severe infectious diseases are not just a national thing,” he said.

Last month, Gavi and CEPI signed a $750 million deal to purchase doses of every potential vaccine candidate through 2023. The deal is intended to ensure vaccines will be fairly distributed, especially in the capital city of Beijing, but also in developing nations, according to the Xinhua news agency, quoting the National Health Commission.

The Chinese government said it would not restrict vaccine exports if the vaccines proved effective.

Bees: ‘Swarm Squad’ busy

Beetlekeeping remains an essential service

WASHINGTON, July 14, (AP) — “Excuse me, can I ask what you do for a living?” someone on a Washington neighborhood asked as Neal Kennedy and Erin Glonon got out of their truck and scanned the scene. The sign on their back windshield, “Bees Onboard,” goes a ways.

Kennedy, 36, and Glonon, 36, are beekeepers. They and their colleagues have been deemed essential workers by the District of Columbia government in the middle of a pandemic. Their phones ring constantly with people about a swarm of honeybees. At first glance it appears as if there’s a hive high up. Kennedy looks down a fence line while Glonon walks across the street and a few paces into the nearby townhouse.

“Let’s check the alley,” Kennedy said, andChurchill climbs back on their truck. They exchange time.

“Hi there,” Glonon said back to their truck. They exchange time.

“Are you a beekeeper?”

“We are,” Glonon said back to their truck. They exchange time. The couple are beekeepers, and they’re busy with a project. They’re busy with a project to relieve the stress of having no one to protect them.

Kennedy and Glonon, who run a business called the Swarm Squad, are a part of the “Swarm Squad,” a group of people who do work to catch bees when they’re released or become a nuisance. They’ve had the chance to do so since the coronavirus pandemic hit the city.

At one point, you could hear a bee swarm in the alley. The couple were busy with their project. They were busy with their project to relieve the stress of having no one to protect them.

The heat is killing crops and livestock, and it’s causing widespread damage. “It’s just helping underline the fact that we’re living in a world where we have to be constantly thinking about how we’re going to do this on a large scale,” Kennedy said.

Lee’s Vietnam film is the right movie for right now

By Josey Noveck

C hristopher Nolan’s ‘Dunkirk’ may have finally won the Best Picture Oscar, but with ‘Da 5 Bloods’, Spike Lee’s absorbing, briskly engaging, satirical look at the Vietnam War, the Oscar-winning filmmaker takes home the prize for the first time. Lee has been nominated for six Oscars, but none for his Vietnam films where he often points out the racism and homophobia of the time.

So far, ‘Da 5 Bloods’ has been a modest hit, but its potent message of racial justice is making it a contender for the Academy Awards.

The film follows the lives of five African American soldiers who served in the Vietnam War. They return to the battlefields to search for the body of their战友, who was killed in action.

The story is told through flashbacks to their time in Vietnam and their efforts to bring the body back home.

Lee, still the man of a lifetime, had a difficult time getting the film made, saying he was “forced to go fishing.” His previous film, ‘BlacKkKlansman’, was a critical and commercial failure, and he said he was “forced to make” the film to show that the story of the Vietnam War is still relevant.

The original idea was to have a woman starring in the film, but Lee said he thought it was better to have an all-male cast. The film was made with minimal resources and a small crew.

The film has been praised for its historical accuracy and its portrayal of the experiences of African American soldiers.

MILAN, July 14. (AP) - Two quick second-half goals lifted Inter Milan to a confidence-boosting 3-1 comeback win over Torino in Serie A.

Inter moved into second place in the standings, although their title hopes are slim, after the match. They have an eight-point advantage over six matches remaining.

“The work that we’re doing at the moment is important and it’s very important for every single one of us as a way forward for our club,” coach Antonio Conte said.

Inter needed a win after two disappointing results. But it was Torino which took the lead in the 17th minute when Handanovic gifted Andrea Bertolacci a goal.

The home side could have equalized before halftime, but late on, outside of theRectangular box around a paragraph reset paragraph formatting. The paragraph contents are preserved.

Manchester United and Southampton were in a tight race for Champions League qualification, coming on the second-to-last day of the season. Manchester City, who had two places to determine, won to ensure they were no longer vying for the third spot.

That means it's a win or lose for Southampton, another Premier League club with Champions League aspirations.

"Every point is so important," said Southampton manager Ralph Hasenhuttl, whose side was on the verge of reclaiming the third spot in the Premier League. "They are fighting for two Champions League spots, behind Leicester only on goal difference.

"We have to make sure we get the job done and see if we are good enough to secure a place in the Champions League."
