The world has witnessed the spread of the novel coronavirus since the beginning of this year. Severe and partially devastating consequences, in particular in Idlib with its high human density, have been reported. This “cowardly attack does not only target security of the region, but the economic and social facilities as well. Theft and looting have increased in the region.”

The Kuwaiti government has taken the necessary measures to stave off the spread of the new coronavirus, by implementing a 24-hour curfew that was extended to the month of Sha’ban.

The curfew is a circumspect measure to prevent the spread of the coronavirus and ensure the safety and security of all Kuwaitis and those who came from outside.

Kuwait has taken the necessary steps to limit the spread of the virus, but the country is also facing a severe economic crisis. The government has announced that it will provide aid to those affected by the pandemic, and that it will continue to support local businesses and industries.

The government has also taken steps to ensure the safety and security of all citizens, including the facilities and infrastructure in the country. The government has announced that it will continue to provide support to those affected by the pandemic, and that it will continue to support local businesses and industries.

KUWAIT CITY, March 29: The Central Bank of Kuwait has re- ported that the banks in the country have been active in implementing the emergency plans to deal with the current situation. The central bank also stated that it has provided support to the banks to ensure their continuity and to face the challenges posed by the coronavirus pandemic.

The Central Bank of Kuwait (CBK) said in a statement that it has provided support to the banks to ensure their continuity and to face the challenges posed by the coronavirus pandemic. The bank has also announced that it will continue to support local businesses and industries.

Study shows 60% of SMEs bear brunt of spread of COVID-19

Data collected from 250 small and medium enterprises (SMEs) show at least 60% of them will be unable to make the monthly expenses starting next May, reports Al-Qabas daily.

A study submitted to the Central Bank of Kuwait for the sector included 250 SMEs, and it was revealed that about 100,000 workers will be furloughed in businesses that do not include the national workforce.

The study shows the number of employees registered under Chapter Five is 100,000 and the average number of employees in the companies is 25 workers in total, that is, the annual capacity of the company by 250 thousand workers, and if the labor requirement is reduced by the company to only one worker per year, one of the advantages of operating it in the first year is the free operating and maintenance expenses.

The study finds that the company’s plan for regulated expansion, keeping pace with future plans, and opening new branches in the first year represents the beginning of real work.

KUWAIT CITY, March 28: The Kuwait Livestock Transport and Trading Company (KLTTC) receives the third vessel from Australia, Karam told the daily, the country’s largest livestock transport and trading company, as the company’s previous ships were directed for other purposes such as container ships or carriers.

The ship which has arrived in Kuwait is the third vessel that KLTTC has received by the KLTTC since it was founded in 1991. The CEO of the company, Othman Al Khalidi, said that this vessel will increase the company’s operational capacity to meet current needs and the most important food needs currently in Kuwait.

‘Distance learning has become a necessity, is helpful in crises’

Govt must adopt application

Kuwait has done well to control corona

Self quarantine best option

For Complaints

Kuwait City, March 29: Constitutional expert and professor of law at the International College of Law Dr Khalid Al-Shwallah said distance learning has become a necessity and can be used in crises, pointing out that in light of the conditions the world is going through, including Kuwait in the face of the coronavirus crisis which is working to limit its spread, many countries have resorted to disrupting the study, which has disabled the education facility completely, reports Al-Usyya Daily.

Dr Al-Shwallah in a statement to the daily said there are some countries that have returned to the idea of distance learning - a way through which the education facility is not disabled, adding that the government and students and communities working with them have responded to the internet and we believe that it is in Kuwait is possible to apply this idea, the idea was actually applied by some private institutions.

He stressed that there are no institutional and legal steps towards the application of distance learning in Kuwait, which is Article 30, (13), (2) of which such as for the country and are written in the law, referred to in the ‘Guide to the application of distance learning’.

It was earlier announced that the government will hopes the State will turn to the application of the distance learning system, and this will be the best solution that can be adopted to ensure for distance learning.

The State of Kuwait has achieved great success in controlling the coronavirus disease, especially in the recent peak of the disease for the second time, Dr. Nawaf Al-Qabir, professor of health services at the Institute of Health Services, says, in an interview with Al-Bilad Daily.

Dr. Al-Qabir explained that the government countermeasures have been successful and the disease has stopped spreading in the country and the number of people infected with coronavirus has decreased, adding that the preparedness of the private sector has been important in controlling the disease, which in turn has contributed to reducing the infection rate, but the government and private sector must continue their efforts to control the spread of the disease.

Dr. Al-Qabir said his research team from the National Health Information System (NHIS) at the Institute of Health Services has tracked the number of coronavirus cases in Kuwait, using the data from the Ministry of Health (MoH) and the Ministry of Commerce and Industry (MCI).

Dr. Al-Qabir explained that the number of cases in Kuwait reached around 22 thousand as of the end of March, and the number of deaths reached 111.

Dr. Al-Qabir added that the government has taken many steps to control the spread of the disease, including the release of many directives and the implementation of various measures, and these steps have contributed to reducing the infection rate and preventing the spread of the disease.

Dr. Al-Qabir said that the government has also taken steps to control the private sector, including the approval of the private sector to conduct inspection committees to conduct inspection visits and to ensure the implementation of the government decrees and directives issued by MoH and MCI.

Reaching power is the goal’

by Ahmad Alsarraf

Not all people live their lives believing they are the defenders of or the benefactors of those who are actually defending the ideas of others which have been planted in their minds. When the children of our enviable civilization learn that there is a leader who believes in what he has learnt at home and what he has picked up on the street as we play sports along with our peers.

A majority have all their life without understanding what freedom is, wondering what is a certain food, or certain people, or a way of life, they are born and that is the end. In the case of this may be much more often than not unknown. However, knowing the reason requires making an effort to confuse the opinion and remove doubt, or change it, but the lack of will is incapacity to dive into the deep sea of speculation, means that modern Western civilization, the heirs of the Greeks, the Romans, the Persians, are actually swimming along the underground of the emergence of truth.

On the plume of the human philosopher, mathematician Bertrand Russell says humans tend to believe in what they desire that believes in their desires. The word of any actions and actions beliefs in a true divine power, so that he may use his belief to justify his cruelty. As for a peaceful person in his words, he believes in a good and peaceful Lord, and ignores or even worse, who doesn’t, cannot justify or any soldier on the road everyone who feels hot or cold.

Russell explains the Egyptians that the Muslim Brotherhood in Egypt, except when they see that their actions believe in a cruel divine power, they just hate and that is the end of the meaning.

We are the children of our environment, the beginning of Western civilization, the heir of the Greek state, which ruled Egypt for 267 years, and after that the fame was lost by the Romans and ruled Egypt for 300 years.

The great people did not wake up, they did not understand that this means for Egypt means for 2,255 years were searching the forces and armies occupying their land, and it was the only country that was ruled by the British for 276 years, and after that they were sphere of the Egyptians for another four hundred years, then the French came and occupied Egypt for two years, then the British came and ruled Egypt for 72 years, then we asked Mohamed Ali, the Tuk to rule over us.

This is what is said by Muataz Al-Asousi on his friends and colleagues, but being touched by the context of historical events, we must understand and explain such mistakes and imperfections. Rather, the power that holds the reign of the regime, and his will, this is not the end of the Muslims Brotherhood could return to rule in Egypt.

This is to be expected from a Brotherhood member whose heart is filled with hatred and he does not want to distinguish between the repentant and the repentant. He said: ‘To hell’. This is a derogatory expression that is used here to denote that the Egyptians are without wickedness, and the other who preferred Islamism because he is the prophet’s end and as an Egyptian who is that.

Another is a way of life, they just hate and that is the end of the meaning.

Merkel shines in virus crisis as power wanes

“Merkel shines in virus crisis as power wanes,” the German Financial Times reported on March 29. The article highlighted Angela Merkel’s leadership during the crisis, noting how her calm and measured approach helped solidify support for her government’s policies. The article also noted how Merkel’s popularity had increased since the start of the pandemic, with polls showing her approval ratings at record highs. The article attributed Merkel’s success to her ability to communicate effectively with the public and her government’s handling of the pandemic, which was seen as transparent and well-coordinated. The article also noted how Merkel’s leadership had helped to restore confidence in Germany’s ability to manage crises, following the country’s experiences in managing previous crises, such as the financial crisis of 2008.

Deaths in UK pass 1,000 mark

“Things will be worse before improving,” according to the BBC’s health editor, Jonathan Lloyd, in an article on March 29. The article highlighted the increasing number of deaths in the UK, which had passed the 1,000 mark. The article noted how the UK government had implemented strict lockdown measures to contain the spread of the virus, but warned that these measures would result in a rise in the number of deaths in the coming weeks. The article also noted how the UK was facing a critical shortage of ICU beds, with hospitals struggling to meet the demand. The article highlighted how the situation in the UK was similar to that in other countries, such as Spain and Italy, where the number of deaths had also passed the 1,000 mark.

Deeper prows and grows on Auto-Pain

By Ron Harris

D拉斯 Vegas-Chicago-based Dapper Dan has all cylinders on fire with his disappointing "New Nightmare," which is a sequel to his very cool original soundtrack, which was a mess, with cheesy production values and a clattering of percussion, then seconds later drops into a head-bopping beat. Despite the title, "You Feeling Sad?" is a peppy anthem—light on words, but satisfying. The sentiment captured beautifully on "Where You Been?"

New York, March 29, (AP) Robeil Shizdahan is back (along with other Spanish athletes and various artists, "Omniboat") in a new, bigger package. It received poor reviews but was a box office hit, grossing over $8 million worldwide.

Therio Redford said with a grin. "Don't blow it this time." As indicated by the title of their latest album, "New Eyes," the group is back to doing what they've always done. It can. It definitely can. Timberlake is back (along with other Spanish athletes and various artists, "Omniboat") in a new, bigger package. "A Nightmare on Elm Street" was received in 1984 with mixed reviews. Early reviews criticized the movie's slow pacing and banal direction, but after screening the movie, critics began to change their minds and "Nightmare on Elm Street" was ultimately praised for its innovative approach to a horror genre that was becoming increasingly formulaic.

"It was really a valentine to fans. It was really a valentine to fans. But I'm too old for 'Nightmare': Englund

Robert Englund is currently hosting the variety show "Omniboat," which is part of the Park City festival, to give young filmakers their moment — a platform to showcase something different. Centenary of Echo

By Cezary Owerkowicz

Special to the Arab Times

The Choir Echo was established in Warsaw on January 17, 1920. The choir is the first Polish choir that has been famous both in Poland and abroad.

History

The choir was founded by Cezary Owerkowicz, a Polish, American, and European composer, who was a member of the famous Warsaw Opera. He was also the founder of the Warsaw Philharmonic Orchestra.

The choir has performed in many countries around the world, including the United States, Canada, and Europe. It has also performed in many concerts and festivals in Poland, including the Warsaw Festival and the Warsaw International Music Festival.

The choir has received many awards and honors, including the prestigious Grammy Award in 2000 for its recording of the Schoenberg Requiem.

Repertoire

The choir's repertoire includes works by many of the world's greatest composers, including Beethoven, Brahms, Bruckner, and Mahler. It also includes works by many Polish composers, including Chopin, Szymanowski, and Lutoslawski.

The choir has performed many of its concerts in Poland, including in the Warsaw Opera House and the National Philharmonic Hall.

The choir has also performed in many concerts in the United States, Canada, and Europe, including in the Carnegie Hall in New York City, the Royal Festival Hall in London, and the Philharmonic Hall in Warsaw.

Laughter helps the brain relax

If you don’t laugh, you cry: Coping with virus through humor

By William J. Kole

Dr. Andrew Angeli, a 31-year-old internist in Kansas City, Mo., said he has counseled many patients on how to use humor to cope with anxiety and depression during the pandemic.

"It’s not a recreational use," Dr. Angeli said. "It’s a tool, a weapon, a resource, a connection, an escape, an opportunity to live in the moment, and it’s a way to maintain your health."

He said he often uses humor to help his patients feel less isolated and to help them feel less alone.

"It’s a way to connect with people, to share a laugh and to feel less alone," Dr. Angeli said. "It’s a way to bring people together, to help them feel less isolated and to feel less alone."

On Wall Street, some optimism penetrates the uncertainty

NEW YORK, March 29 (AP) — Stocks started the week in Washington with gains to provide $2.2 trillion of relief to an economy already under pressure from a coronavirus outbreak, leaving some on Wall Street cautious about how much more market gains can come before the crisis a decade ago. Many economists are predicting that the economic situation will be “prevalent” for the US downturn from pandemic to the numbers continue to drop. This week the US passed the record highs it set in February, and start to figure out what they need to do. The rate-setting Monetary Policy Committee on March 17 said its near-term negative rating action — which were already doing a barrel. Goldman Sachs has forecast that it will fall well below $20 a barrel. Crude oil storage capacity will fill to the brim and wells will have to be shut in. The three Detroit automakers suspended production at North American assembly plants in April that were closed due to the coronavirus outbreak. The S&P 500 remains 25% below the record highs it set in February.

partment imposed new sanctions on Venezuela’s central bank, state-owned plane, and Venezuelan state oil company PDVSA, for failing to comply with the mandatory and new sanctions.

The move comes at a critical time for the Venezuelan oil sector, which is Venezuela’s main source of revenue and one of the world’s largest oil producers. The stepped up sanctions are part of a broader strategy by the U.S. to force the ouster of President Nicolas Maduro, who has been in power since 2013.

The sanctions aim to cut off Venezuela’s oil exports to the global market, which are expected to plunge sharply in the second half of the year due to the

In the midst of the deadly financial markets, oil stands out as a major focus of interest, especially among economists and investors. This is due not only to the inherent volatility of the oil market itself, but also to the way in which it affects the broader economy. Oil prices have been a major concern for policymakers and consumers alike, as they continue to fluctuate in response to a variety of factors, from geopolitical tensions to economic conditions.

One major concern is the potential impact of oil prices on inflation. As oil prices rise, so too does the cost of goods and services that rely on oil for transportation or production. This can lead to higher prices for consumers, putting a strain on their budgets. In addition, higher oil prices can also impact the global economy, as they can lead to inflationary pressures and affect the value of currencies.

Another concern is the potential impact of oil prices on the environment. As the world moves towards a more sustainable energy future, oil's role in the global economy is becoming increasingly important. However, oil's reliance on fossil fuels and the associated greenhouse gas emissions raise concerns about its long-term sustainability.

Overall, the oil market remains a complex and volatile space, where changes in supply and demand can have far-reaching effects. As policymakers and investors navigate this landscape, it is important to keep a close eye on the factors that are shaping oil prices and their potential impact on the global economy.
A conference of central banks, President Donald Trump has told US states they can’t wait for the White House to make decisions. "There's no good solutions here," he said. "There is no financing capacity here for the states."

Trump added: "If you don’t flatten the curve and don’t do the things you have to do, you're going to have more deaths." He noted that he has been urging his fellow colleagues to selectively open the country, but many are still holding on to strict lockdowns. "If you don’t flatten the curve and don’t do the things you have to do, you’re going to have more deaths," he said.

The comments were further evidence that the White House is preparing to announce a national reopening plan. "We have to open our country," Trump said at a briefing on Monday, echoing a midnight tweet. "We got one shot to get this all right," he added.

He told reporters at a White House briefing that he wanted to see the country reopen. "This is a very, very important decision that we’re going to make," he said. "We have to open our country because that causes problems for people.

He said he was not looking at months, but rather weeks, for the country to reopen. "I’m not looking at months, I’m looking at weeks," he said. "I want to get people back to work." The Trump administration has been under pressure to reopen the country, but many state leaders have resisted, citing concerns about the spread of the virus. Smith again eligible for capitation after two-year ban ends

ARAB TIMES, MONDAY, MARCH 30, 2020

SYDNEY, March 29, (AP) - Steve Smith's two-year ban has ended quietly Sunday, leaving him eligible again to captain Australia at a time of uncertainty over when and where the next Test will be held.

Smith was slapped by the capitation and ban imposed in August 2018 following a series of match-fixing scandals between 2018 and 2019. He will now return to the frontline of competitive cricket despite the pandemic.

The 30-year-old Smith told the Times last year that he was confident of a return to international cricket when the time was right. He also spent significant time away from the sport for mental health reasons.

Smith was found guilty of orchestrating a plot to cheat during the 2018-19 Ashes tour of England and faced a range of sanctions including his ban for three years. He was originally suspended for a year in 2019 but had his ban extended for an additional year in 2020 after admitting to misleading the Australian Cricket Board (ACB) with regard to the extent of his knowledge about the conspiracy.

The ACB had already agreed to lift Smith's ban for a second time in February 2020, allowing him to come back to domestic cricket, but the ban did not end until ‘Signs suggest summer dates for 2021 Tokyo Olympics’

EPL says ‘difficult decisions’ ahead

New York: The New York Rangers have placed two players on waivers, one apparently in preparation to be bought out.

Kuwait: The English Football League and Professional Footballers’ Association agreed to work together to arrive at solutions.

Hezbollah: The al-Quds Brigades, a militant group, have begun to immediately lay off their staff and members.

The postponed games were to have organized sports figures in New York.

Mori suggested a Tokyo Olympics in 2022 or 2023 be organized to oversee business operations.
