'It is a photographic dialogue between two cities'

KUWAIT CITY, Oct 14: In keeping with its aim to celebrate the diversity of its members with a range of different events that highlight the uniquely wonderful cultures and traditions from around the world, the International Women's Group, in cooperation with the Italian Embassy, organized a photo exhibition in the embassy's "Spazio Italia-Kuwait", entitled "The Great Beauty" by Remo Casilli and "Capturing Al-Kout" by Usman Mohammed Iqbal.

The group's public relations coordinator, Mrs. Laila Boulos, introduced the Italian Ambassador, H.E. Carlo Baldocci, who welcomed the artists, members and guests to the embassy.

In his remarks, Ambassador Baldocci explained that he had decided to open a special area in the Italian Embassy, called "Spazio Italia-Kuwait" as a unique place dedicated to fostering dialogue between people, promoting projects, activities, and joint initiatives between the two countries.

He also stressed that the current exhibition is a perfect example of cultural exchange, and the beginning of more events to follow.

As a sign of appreciation, the IWG presented a commemorative shield in honor of His Excellency.

Next, Mrs. Cristiana Baldocci, wife of the Italian Ambassador and President of the International Women's Group in Kuwait, welcomed everyone and thanked Sheikh Hanouf Bader Al Muhamad Al Sabah, Honorary President of the IWG, for her kind support; she also thanked the IWG board for their help in organizing the event.

Mrs. Baldocci introduced the exhibition by saying that it is a photographic dialogue between two cities, Kuwait City and Rome. She said: "through this exhibition we will explore exactly what is meant by urban cultural heritage. Something that is inherited, passed down from previous generations. It is a kind of heritage that doesn't consist of money or property, but of culture, values and traditions; that implies a shared bond, our belonging to a community. It represents our history and our identity; our bond to the past, to our present, and the future and above all, love for our cities"

For the first time, the photographer Usman Muhammad Iqbal, born and raised in Kuwait, presented his photographs that reflect facets of the original Kuwaiti heritage, and aspects of the development of the environment and art in the area. His exceptional technique has already earned him international visibility and the beauty of the images shows the importance of Kuwaiti heritage; the heritage that binds the past to the present and the future of this magnificent Country.

Remo Casilli, a successful Roman photographer, who has already exhibited in Italy and abroad, presented the wonderful evening and night images of Rome, the "Eternal City", illuminated and celebratory.

After Mrs. Baldocci conducted a ribbon cutting ceremony to open the exhibition, the guests were delighted to see the photographs, and the photographers were honored for their exceptional work in photo documenttation. A light meal was prepared by the Chefs of the Crowne Plaza and in closing special prizes were drawn for the attendees.

First hospital in Kuwait to achieve corporate ethics mark

CIPS awards Al Seef Hospital for its healthcare service

KUWAIT CITY, Oct 14: The Chartered Institute of Procurement & Supply (CIPS) has awarded Al Seef Hospital in Kuwait, a leader in delivering international standards of healthcare, the CIPS corporate ethics mark which showcases an organisation's ethical principles in procurement and supply. Staff at the hospital completed ethics training and passed a test in fraud, corruption, bribery, human rights and environmental concerns in procurement and supply chain. Al Seef Hospital, is the first hospital in Kuwait to achieve the CIPS corporate ethics mark.

The CIPS Ethical Procurement and Supply eLearning and Test has been recently updated and renewed to provide quality learning and guidance for organizations concerned about unethical practices in their supply chains. Developed for all levels of procurement professionals, the program and test enable individuals and organizations to hone their skills and knowledge and ultimately demonstrate their commitment to ethical practice. Al Seef Hospital was established in 2009, with the aim to substantially alter the healthcare landscape in Kuwait and principally focusing on specialized women's and children's health services, as well as multi-disciplinary medical and surgical specialties. After the training and test, ten staff members from the hospital went on to become CIPS members to continue their learning and implementation of high standards.

Dedication

Commenting on the achievement, CIPS Managing director Sam Achampong said, "Good healthcare is a vital aspect to our lives that enables us to continue to work, travel and take care of our families, so knowing that procurement is being conducted with ethical principles in mind is a comfort and differentiates the hospital from others in the region.

"I commend the team at Al Seef Hospital for their knowledge and dedication in going through the rigorous detailed training and for taking the test, providing confidence to their colleagues, stakeholders and patients that important ethical issues are high on the agenda."

On this auspicious occasion, the Ag. CEO of Al Seef Hospital, Ashraf Elhag commented that "It is a great recognition for the Hospital in being the first hospital in Kuwait to obtain the CIPS Corporate Ethics mark and this clearly demonstrates our commitment to adhering to the highest level of international ethical standards and practices hospital wide. I would also like to thank the entire Materials management team for earning this valuable global recognition for the Hospital. This program was implemented as a part of the annual professional development program for hospital staff and to ensure that the Materials management team adheres to the best ethical standards while managing their supply chain operations and also practice ethical sourcing and management of suppliers on a daily basis".

Companies that achieve the ethics mark are included in the CIPS Corporate Ethics Register which includes various sectors and organisations around the globe. Sign up your procurement and supply management team to take the test and learn about what makes up strong, ethical supply chains giving confidence to staff, customers and other stakeholders that supply chains are being managed with the strong ethical principles.
