

Al-Durra company in midst of organizational 'restructuring'

Bid to attract domestic workers

KUWAIT CITY, May 27: Deputy chairman of Al-Durra company Asi Al-Hajri said, "The company is in the process of restructuring in terms of organizational structures and work plans and moving to new labor markets to attract domestic workers according to the regulations set by the Ministry of For-ign Affairs in agreement with the embassies of the respective countries, reports Al-Jarida daily.

Al-Hajri said Al-Durra is working according to the agreements with agencies to bring domestic labor approved by their governments. He pointed out that if Al-Durra was assisted by the government in achieving its objectives and removing obstacles, prices would fall, in bringing in labor at reduced prices.

Al-Hajri explained that the "embassies provide a certain number of workers of up to fifty workers, and when they are discharged without problems it is possible to bring in 50 more." He expressed his desire for more numbers, more requests and assistance in facilitating matters.

He said the company is currently dealing with the Philippines, India and Sri Lanka, working with government agencies in those countries, pointing out that its goal is to open new markets through contact with the Foreign Ministry.

He pointed out that Al-Durra offers cheaper prices from the market, works with human rights groups, and has signed a protocol with the Human Rights Office in Kuwait to match the terms of employment with human rights principles to improve the image of Kuwait.

As for the current season and the ability of "Durra for labor" to reduce prices, the company has a plan in 2019 to bring at least 9 thousand workers during the year, to reduce prices and attract skilled workers through agreements between the company and embassies of the concerned states to ensure the rights of the laborers.

Meteorologists predict volatile summer this yr

No radioactive leaks expected

KUWAIT CITY, May 27: Informed research sources said that the occurrence of radioactive leaks in the event of any emergency in the region is ruled out, pointing out that it is not limited to the region but includes all countries of the region, as the effects of leakage know no limits, reports Al-Anba daily.

The sources pointed out that there are a number of monitoring stations for radiation in a number of state agencies such as the Environment Public Authority, the Ministry of Health and scientific institutions, such as the Kuwait Institute for Scientific Research which is a research institution that provides scientific advice to decision-makers on the subject of radiation.

KUWAIT CITY, May 27: Meteorologists have predicted a volatile summer in the country this year, noting that the temperature will be about 68 degrees under the sun next month. They pointed out on Twitter that the temperatures yesterday reached 63 degrees Celsius under direct sunlight at 11 am, reports Al-Qabas daily.

They added the declared result is not official, but are measured by means of monitoring devices available to them.

They pointed out the temperature under the shade was 45 degrees Celsius, a degree according to the concerned government agencies.

Al-Arabi Sports Club won on Saturday an award presented by the Netherland's World Stadium Congress 2019 for its design for Sabah Al-Salem Stadium.
