Mistrust, but Afghan Shiites seek Taliban protection

O n the outskirts of Kabul, a little boy looks hungry as he waits at the door of a hospital. His name is Mohammed, and he is one of the many children in the city who are malnourished. The hospital, a small clinic, is one of the few places where children can receive medical care. Mohammed was born a month prematurely, and his mother died from complications during childbirth. He is one of the many children who are malnourished due to the economic crisis and the Taliban's policies.

The Taliban's policies have been disastrous for the people of Afghanistan. Many children, like Mohammed, are suffering from malnutrition. The situation has worsened since the Taliban seized power in August. The economy has been severely affected, and the government has been unable to provide basic necessities like food and medical care.

Mohammed's father, Jinnat Gul, said he can hardly afford to feed his family. They tried giving him some supplies to treat his diarrhea, but he got an infection instead. The ward gets around 30 new cases a day, and the nurses to cleaning staff, have not received their salaries in three months.

The Indira Gandhi Children's Hospital had to expand its space dedicated to malnutrition wards. The ward gets around 30 new cases a day, and the nurses to cleaning staff, have not received their salaries in three months. The country's economy had been rapidly declining under the previous US-backed government, which struggled to pay salaries to its employees. The Taliban government is mired in financial crisis, and it needs supplies to feed people as the harsh winter sets in, but it says it needs some $220 million a month in 2022 to fund its effort.

Emaciated children point to rising hunger

I n Kabul’s main children’s hospital, 25-year-old Gulab is sitting up at his bed, but he’s too exhausted to even open his eye. His body is wrapped in a blanket, but only the emaciated face showing. She’s one of a growing number of near-starving children who are brought every day to the Indira Gandhi Children’s Hospital in the Afghan capital. Hunger is increasing dramatically in Afghanistan, fueled by an economic crisis that has only gotten worse since the Taliban seized power in August. The country's minorities fear for their future and their safety.

The Taliban initially confiscated weapons that Hazaras had used to defend themselves against the Taliban and its allies. The Taliban have also been targeting the Hazaras and other ethnic groups. Courting international recognition, they vowed to protect the Hazaras as a show of their acceptance of the country’s minorities.

The Hazaras fear the Taliban protection does not extend to the community, as the extremist groups, which they say are common among the Taliban. For three months, work has been flourishing. The U.N.’s World Food Program said Monday that the number of people living in Afghanistan in near-famine conditions has risen to 6 million, according to the World Food Program. The Taliban government is currently struggling to feed its people as the harsh winter sets in, but it says it needs some $220 million a month in 2022 to fund its effort.

The differences are partly religious. But Hazaras, who make up an estimated 10% of Afghanistan’s population of nearly 40 million, are also ethnically distinct. They speak a variety of Pashto and other languages. They have a long history of being oppressed by the Pashtuns majority, some of whose tribes intermarry with them. But after the Taliban's victory, they have been targeted for their religious beliefs, wearing their traditional ceremonial garb - the look of a jihadi insurgent - rather than a police uniform. Sohrab, the Hazara guard at the Abul Fazl al-Abbas Shrine, told The Associated Press: “This is a sign of the strange, new relationship brought by the Taliban’s takeover. KUWAIT CITY, Nov 21: The employment file is the most important step in the Kuwaiti government's strategy to fill the government's requirements for upcoming govt jobs. There are three main components that must be tackled both in the government sector and in the private sector.

The Kuwaiti government, under the leadership of His Highness the Amir, is striving to achieve a state of institutions, not to perpetuate the kind that overwhelmed all his competitors.

Abdulrahman al-Barrak, the Minister of Interior in this regard, reiterated the law, we will not provide him with any support.

Abu Salib, Major General Al-Zuabi said, "If it turns out that an expatriate who was subjected to abuse or any treatment that is not accordance with the law, we will not provide him with any support."

The country's second development plan has been devised to establish employment in the government sector in the near future.

In recent years, there has been a surge in the number of graduates of some scientific disciplines, including engineering, medicine, law, and teaching. The Kuwaiti government has taken measures to encourage more people to become involved in the national cadre and those with a high level of education. We want Al-Barrak to seek to establish employment in the government sector in the near future.

Constitution guarantees stability

Dr. Al-Moqate'a

In Kuwait, the Ministry of Health has warned against the promotion of herbal products and supplements as treatment for chronic diseases through social messages or websites, urging the public to stop using the Whatever the case may be, we say the timing of issuing such a measure is timely and appropriate, because the amended law streamlined and simplified the provisions included in this law in order to confront unusual situations that the country may face. Therefore, this law falls within what we call in constitutional jurisprudence the “basic laws” of their constitution, for its great importance.

Moreover, a medical expert who spoke to Al-Qabas daily wrote that the amendments made to the law are expected to promote the government’s policies and programs to combat the misuse of antibiotics. Thus, studies are conducted while plans are made for more affirmative measures to be taken during the forthcoming phase.

Antibiotics remain the primary tool to fight against the various types of diseases, a fact that is reflected through the number of people who need them every day. Moreover, the lack of antibiotics and their misuse can have grave consequences on the population, which is why it is important to appreciate the overall opinion of the people of Kuwait.

The week from Nov 18-25 of each year marks the International Week for Awareness of the Rational Use of Antibiotics and to Stop Their Misuse. This measure is a response to the challenge of ensuring that antibiotics are used appropriately and that the world is aware of the importance of its role in the fight against the enormous complications related to infections such as the resistance of microbes to antibiotics, which has occurred in recent years.

There is a need for antibiotics to be used judiciously and not in excess, because antibiotics are overused and long stay of patients in hospitals is one of the biggest consequences of this practice.

In this context, the government has taken steps to implement policies and programs to combat antibiotic resistance and to ensure that antibiotics are used appropriately and long stay of patients in hospitals is one of the biggest consequences of this practice.

The ministry has established a committee to monitor and report on the measures taken to combat antibiotic resistance and to ensure that antibiotics are used appropriately and long stay of patients in hospitals is one of the biggest consequences of this practice.

Hundreds, worst Rittenhouse acquittal across US

In North Carolina, dozens of people gathered Thursday night near the site where Kyle Rittenhouse’s trial took place. Described as a ‘riot’ by authorities, the crowd included a few dozen homeless people who were fed and clothed.

The protesters were breaking windows, vandalizing property and setting off fireworks.

About 1,000 people marched through downtown Chicago Saturday afternoon, organized by Black Lives Matter Chicago and other local activist groups. According to one source, marchers chanted: “No justice, no peace!” and “Shut down the system of white supremacy.”

“While I am not surprised by yesterday’s verdict, I am still, I am disappointed. I am enraged. I have lost every ounce of faith in our justice system,” said Watkins, who co-founded Black Lives Matter.

Protests have been held in several other cities, including Chicago and Portland, where the protesters demanding the end of police brutality vowed to keep marching.

President Joe Biden said he will soon announce a national strategy to address racial disparities in vaccination and said that putting the country in a better position now.

‘Gulf Bank 642 Marathon’ Returns For Its Seventh Edition

The Gulf Bank 642 Marathon, one of the biggest sporting events in Kuwait, launched on Saturday with more than 7000 participants at the starting line, from 93 nationalities, and with 350 organizing volunteers on the exciting sports and family day.

In celebration of the widespread success of this year’s Gulf Bank 642 Marathon, Gulf Bank organized an awards ceremony honoring the top three winners from each race category. The ceremony took place at AlShabab Park in the presence of Gulf Bank CEO, Mr. Tony Daher, and the Director General of the Public Authority for Sport, Dr. Humoud Al-Shammari, along with representatives of the Ministry of Interior and marathon sponsors.

This year, the participants kicked off in small groups in order to maintain social distancing and to ensure everyone’s safety. The marathon started at 7:30 AM at Souq Sharq Bridges with an atmosphere filled with positive energy, excitement and beautiful weather. It was the perfect time for the participants to run through the landmarks of Kuwait till they reached the finish line at Souq Sharq Mall on the Arabian Gulf, which is next to the Grand Mosque of Kuwait and Mahbouliya. Depending on the distance category, runners continued on their respective running paths, jogging past a variety of Kuwait’s beautiful landmarks, from the Sheikh Jaber Al-Ahmad Cultural Center to the Kuwait Towers, before crossing the finish line.

The marathon route was designed this way in order to motivate the participants to have a fun family day, even if they do not exercise regularly. The Gulf Bank 642 Marathon is distinguished by its Bronze Label from World Athletics, which is only given to only 128 marathons globally. The Gulf Bank 642 Marathon is the only marathon in Kuwait that has the Bronze accreditation. The marathon is also recognized by The Abbott/WMRR Wanda Age Group World Rankings, which is a global age group marathon ranking system.

Gulf Bank employees also participated in the day’s fun, with Gulf Bank employees taking part in the marathon.

Groups from other local companies also enjoyed their day outside of the office working on their health and fitness together.

Commenting on this year’s Gulf Bank 642 Marathon, Mr. Ahmad Al Amic, Deputy General Manager for Corporate Communications at Gulf Bank, stated: “We are happy that this year’s Gulf Bank 642 Marathon is an unforgettable experience. We would like to extend a special thanks to the Ministry of Interior, Ministry of Health, Kuwaiti Municipality, Public Authority for Sport, and all our volunteers.”

Gulf Bank’s vision is to be the leading Kuwaiti Bank of the Future. The Bank is constantly engaging and empowering its employees as part of an inclusive and diversified workplace in recognition of every employee’s role in delivering customer excellence and serving the community at large. With its extensive network of branches and innovative digital services, Gulf Bank is able to give its customers the choice of how and where to conduct their banking transactions, all while ensuring a simple and seamless banking experience.

Gulf Bank is committed to maintaining a robust sustainability program at the community, economic, and environmental levels through sustainability initiatives that are strategically selected to benefit both the country and the Bank. The Bank also supports Kuwait Vision 2035 “New Kuwait” and works with various relevant parties to achieve it.

Experts ‘mythbusting’ as Africa avoids disaster

HARARE, Zimbabwe, Nov 23 (AP). As a busy market in a suburb of Harare bustled with routine activities Thursday, a group of men met in the park, as hundreds of people mostly young people — sang and danced to popular tracks played on wooden tablets and plastic sheets. As much of the world feels the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, a large segment of the population in Zimbabwe has been religiously being taught to do just the opposite, as political rallies, concerts and public gatherings have been barred.

“This is the only way to beat the virus,” said the Rev. Dr. Mbilisani Mudzingwa, an assistant bishop of the Methodist Church of Zimbabwe. “We are not allowed to have a service of praise outside and we have to stay at home. The only way out is to stay at home and get the vaccine.”

Mudzingwa and other Zimbabwean religious leaders are among the many who have taken part in an initiative called Faith Matters: Mythbusting COVID-19. The project was launched last month as a response to what many churches and religious leaders see as a misinformation campaign to undermine the vaccine and other public health measures.

“Some churches feel it is their right to continue to hold a service of praise, whether it is out of an ignorance of the whole thing or they want to do things their way,” said Mudzingwa. “We don’t have a choice. The vaccine is the only thing that can save us.”

The project, which is a collaboration between the Methodist Church of Zimbabwe, the Zimbabwe Catholic Commission for Justice and Peace and the Zimbabwe Council of Churches, aims to dispel myths and misconceptions about the pandemic and promote vaccine uptake.

“People are afraid of the unknown,” said Mudzingwa. “They are afraid of the vaccine and the fear is that it will change their lives. So we try to explain that it is not a threat and that it will save their lives.”

One of the myths being dispelled is the belief that Africa has not been affected by the pandemic. “Africa is not immune to the pandemic,” said Mudzingwa. “It has been hit as hard as anywhere else in the world. What we are seeing is that Africa is not reporting as many cases as other regions because of underreporting and lack of access to testing.”

Another myth is that the vaccine is not effective. “We have evidence that the vaccine works,” said Mudzingwa. “The World Health Organization and the European Union have approved it and it has been shown to be safe and effective.”

The project also dispels the myth that the pandemic is over. “We have to be cautious,” said Mudzingwa. “The pandemic is not over and we have to continue to take precautions.”

Mudzingwa said he hopes the project will help promote vaccine uptake and dispel myths that are hindering progress.

“People need to understand that the vaccine is the only way out of this crisis,” said Mudzingwa. “We are not going to have a magical solution to this pandemic. We have to continue to take precautions and get the vaccine.”

NEW YORK, Nov 21, (AP) — David Cohen has been hunting for a reason for 30 years when he began his research in the state archives in Times Square.

While tourists have been streaming, traffic in Grand Slam universities is still not what it was before the coronavirus pandemic, when hundreds of global tourists visited every day. Cohen differed from many in that he did not light a fire under the building.

The library, Cohen, 64, says, is a place he particularly called because he had the same place to research, often at the same time. In the 2010-11 issue of the New York Times, Cohen shared his story.

There are many more of them inside the building — and Cohen says he has seen them often. He is trying to collect thousands of pounds of paper and has done it for years. Cohen is the author of The American Revolution: The War of Independence.

The auction, whose proceeds will benefit a foundation established by the estate developer and collector who bought it at an estate sale in 1988, had real estate analysts. The record of the auction is the highest price paid for a single work of art by a single artist.

The sale is one of the largest of the year and is expected to attract attention from collectors around the world.

The auction, held at the Sotheby's in New York on Wednesday, reached a total of $116.7 million, including $12.7 million for the 18th-century British painting "The Times Square Alliance," a joint venture of the city and the Times Square Alliance.

The sale is part of a series of auctions announced by the New York museum to raise funds for its ongoing efforts to preserve and promote the city's cultural heritage.

The auction, which was announced last month, received strong interest from collectors and art lovers around the world.

The proceeds of the sale will be used to fund the museum's acquisition of new works of art and to support its programs and educational initiatives.

Helen Mirren gives actor's guild Life Achievement Award

"I am honored to have been chosen to receive the SAG Life Achievement Award," Mirren said in a statement. "It is a great honor to receive this award from such a distinguished group of performers." Mirren is a three-time Oscar winner and has been nominated for seven others.

"She and her friends flew to New York from Madrid on the first day US borders became open for international tourists, said Dr. Tapper Goldman, Sotheby's senior Americas chairman.

"When you come back to New York, this is what you want to see," Goldman said. "You want to see the real New York, the New York that you remember, the New York that you want to come back to."
Sting back with ‘Bridge’ over the troubled water

By Kenneth M. Williams

The Bridge. Sting (A&M/Atlantic/Chrysalis)

Sting’s new album is aptly titled “The Bridge” — no surprise, considering every song on it is a bridge. It is the opening song, the final track of a new album, and it is also a bridge to something else. It is a bridge to a new era in Sting’s career, and it is a bridge to the future.

The title song tells of a bridge across the Rio Grande, which divides the United States from Mexico, and it is a bridge that connects two nations. It is a bridge that connects two cultures, and it is a bridge that connects two peoples.

The bridge is made of stone, and it is made of wood, and it is made of iron, and it is made of brick. It is a bridge that has been built by many hands, and it is a bridge that has been torn down by many hands.

The bridge is made of love, and it is made of hate, and it is made of fear, and it is made of hope. It is a bridge that has been crossed by many people, and it is a bridge that has been abandoned by many people.

The bridge is a symbol of unity, and it is a symbol of division, and it is a symbol of power, and it is a symbol of humility. It is a bridge that has been used to lift people up, and it is a bridge that has been used to bring people down.

The bridge is a symbol of life, and it is a symbol of death, and it is a symbol of joy, and it is a symbol of sorrow. It is a bridge that has been used to celebrate, and it is a bridge that has been used to mourn.

The bridge is a symbol of beauty, and it is a symbol of ugliness, and it is a symbol of grace, and it is a symbol of gracelessness. It is a bridge that has been used to inspire, and it is a bridge that has been used to discourage.

The bridge is a symbol of freedom, and it is a symbol of slavery, and it is a symbol of independence, and it is a symbol of dependence. It is a bridge that has been used to open doors, and it is a bridge that has been used to close doors.

The bridge is a symbol of peace, and it is a symbol of war, and it is a symbol of unity, and it is a symbol of division. It is a bridge that has been used to build bridges, and it is a bridge that has been used to destroy bridges.

The bridge is a symbol of hope, and it is a symbol of despair, and it is a symbol of love, and it is a symbol of hate. It is a bridge that has been used to lift people up, and it is a bridge that has been used to bring people down.

Slovakian skier Vlhova defeats Shiffrin for 2nd time in 2 days

Levi, Finland, Nov 21, (AP) — Petra Vlhova got her third win of the season on Sunday as she defeatedistant American Mikaela Shiffrin for the second time in two days. Shiffrin had led after the first run and ultimately beat her American rival by 0.16 of a second.

Shiffrin, who has won 45 World Cup races, was seeking her first victory since a giant slalom win in January 2020. She had been in second place after the first run, but ultimately lost to Vlhova by 0.16 of a second. Vlhova took home $61,000, while Shiffrin earned $37,000. Shiffrin has been in third place in the overall standings since early this season.

Vlhova's third win of the season included a standout performance, gaining more time on American's coaches, Jeff Lackie.

Shiffrin nearly skied out in her final run. On the flat part I felt not so good. I had a bit of a jitters. It was 99% just nerves. I had an upswing and then a dip. It was 1.64 back in eighth.
